No one was injured.

A pickup truck driven by Mary Lee Brown, 43, Wardell, stalled on U. S. 62 at the north edge of Portageville Thursday at 8:45 p.m. A pickup truck, driven by Walter Patten, 75, Portageville, swerved to avoid hitting the stalled pickup and went into a ditch, troopers said.

In a one-car accident Thursday at 11 a.m. at the junction of Routes A and K near Portageville a car driven by Primes Gardner, 52, Portageville, started to make a turn when a tire blew out, causing the car to go into a ditch and overturn, troopers said.

He was not injured.

Baseball Tourney Still in Air

The prospect of having the regional tournament for the Connie Mack Baseball League in Sikeston next August remains in the air today following a breakfast meeting at the Holiday Inn with league officials viewing two other possible sites.

Interest and enthusiasm for having the playoffs here seemed to impress the officials, but a question of conflicting dates clouds any commitments.

The problem lies in the possibility that the tournament would fall on the same dates of the annual Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo.

Motel and hotel space would be fully occupied during the rodeo.

Hugh Inman, Ft. Worth, Tex., athletic director for parks and recreation in Ft. Worth and South Plains, vice president of the American Amateur Baseball Congress, and his assistant, Otis Caldwell, stopped here for a breakfast meeting with Ron Voss, KMPL newsman, who has been promoting for the tournament, and about 12 businessmen.

Inman and Cardwell will attend a meeting Saturday and Sunday in St. Louis, where the national tournament playoff date will be set.

If the national tournament is set to begin Aug. 21, 1968, then the regional would probably begin Aug. 14, Inman said. But this will not be decided until Sunday.

The date of the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo has not been set yet, because details have not been settled in contracting a star, John E. Harper Jr., Jaycee president, said.

But if the tournament were to begin Aug. 14, it would seem ideal, Harper said.

Connie Mack league baseball is for boys 16-19. If the regional were played here, the winning teams in Texas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Arkansas, New Mexico, Kansas and Missouri would contend.

It would be an eight-team tournament and would probably last four days. Sikeston would be

1966 Earthquakes

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -- There will be an earthquake today, somewhere. There will be one tomorrow, just as there was at least one yesterday.

It may be so light that only sensitive recording instruments will record its motion. It may shake houses, rattle windows and knock cans off store shelves. It may be strong enough to cause property damage, death and injury.

Betting that there will be an earthquake on any given day is like betting that there will be a sunrise. There are several million quakes each year, thousands each day.

A major portion each year -- 81 of every 100 -- center around the rim of the Pacific Ocean, but they can occur anywhere. No region is entirely free of earthquakes.

An average 700 have enough force to do damage, but most are in unpopulated areas.

When they hit where people live, the destruction can be awesome. The worst in 1966 killed 2,529 persons, caused 1,500 injuries and made 108,000 homeless in eastern Turkey. Twenty or more villages were razed and the town of Varto, almost destroyed, had 500 deaths.

Eleven countries had earthquake-caused fatalities in 1966. The total for the year was 2,968, not counting China which had deaths but didn't make a report.

In the year 1966, California as usual was the biggest American producer of earthquakes that could be felt without instruments. California had 114 such quakes, Alaska had 42, New Mexico 26, Montana 25, Nevada 11, Colorado 10, Washington 3, Texas 2, and Idaho, New York, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Virginia and West Virginia had one each.

Not enough is understood about earthquakes -- many caused by volcanic shocks or faulting of the earth's rocks -- for anyone to be able to predict where and when a shock will occur. But research is being conducted by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, as well as other public and private agencies. One of the most promising areas for this research is along California's San Andreas fault, where a weakness in the earth poses the danger of earthquakes at any moment.

The magnitude of earthquakes is measured through a complicated formula on what is known as the Richter scale. Any quake above a magnitude of 8 on that scale is considered "great."

The greatest quakes ever recorded occurred in January 1906 off the coast of Columbia-Ecuador and in March 1923 in Japan. Both shocks were rated 8.9 on Richter scale. Five violent quakes, from 1908 to 1935, killed over a half-million people in China, Italy, Japan and Pakistan.

In July this year, the death total from quakes was 467 -- including 236 in Venezuela, 211 in Turkey and 10 each in Colombia and Algeria. The strongest of those four was the July 22 quake in Turkey, rated 7-7.25 on the Richter scale.

But this year, Aug. 19, set a record in quake statistics. That date marked the longest recorded period without occurrence of a "great" earthquake, one of magnitude 8 or above.

That record began with the March 28, 1964, Alaskan earthquake which had a magnitude of 8.5, caused 131 deaths and about $450 million property damage.

Scientists call 1966 a "dry" year because there were only two earthquakes of magnitude of 6.75 or above.

Until more is known about earthquakes, there is no way of telling what next year, next month -- or even tomorrow -- will bring. But someday, scientists hope, they'll be able to forecast quakes as easily as they can now predict rain.

LBJ Sees Progress in War

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said today "we are pleased with the results we're getting" in the Vietnam war. He also said his military commander "anticipates no increase" in the previously authorized U.S. troop strength in Vietnam.

As for calls for a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam, Johnson told a news conference, Hanoi's own response has shown that stopping the air attacks alone will not bring the Reds to the negotiating table.

He said Hanoi's rejection of his latest offer of peace talks— made last weekend aboard the aircraft carrier Enterprise— had been "clear and complete." That should answer the question of every person in this country who thinks a bombing halt alone will accomplish this end, he said.

"There are some hopeful people and there are some naive people and there are some political people" who advocate a one-sided bombing suspension, but such proposals just "confuse and weaken our position," he said.

As he talked of the situation in Vietnam, Johnson walked a few steps from the lectern in the White House East Room and gestured with his hands and arms.

Reporting on his current talks with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. William C. Westmoreland— both back from Saigon for consultations— Johnson said:

"We are making progress. We are pleased with the results we're getting. We are inflicting greater losses than we are taking."

Johnson said the American people are impatient in war or in a football game, and want the action to build up quickly and the enemy to be defeated rapidly. He swung his arms wide, using his hands to indicate how the progress toward a quick victory might be shown on a chart.

"But it's not that kind of war we're fighting in Vietnam," Johnson said, indicating that its tempo is much slower.

"In 1954 we said we'd stand with those people out there to meet the common danger," Johnson said. "The time came when we had to put up or shut up. We put up."

Johnson said that he had discussed the troop problem Thursday night with Westmoreland. He then recalled that he had previously considered and approved what he called "recommendations of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the force level in Vietnam."

"Gen. Westmoreland," Johnson said, "tells me that he anticipates no increase in that level."

The buildup to 525,000 men is supposed to be accomplished by mid-1968, but Westmoreland has been reported seeking a speed-up to maximum strength before that time.

As of last Saturday, the American troop strength in Vietnam reached 470,000 men, only 2,000 short of the peak U.S. strength in the Korean War 14 years ago.

Congressional sources quoted Westmoreland Thursday as being optimistic about the war's progress and as believing a troop reduction may be possible within two years. But he indicated no early end of the fighting is in sight.

"He sees the enemy losing steadily and continuously," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., after the general appeared Thursday before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Jackson quoted Westmoreland as saying North Vietnamese troops are better equipped than ever but aren't well led and their fighting quality is diminishing.

Even so, he "does not see any early termination of the war," reported the committee chairman, Richard B. Russell, D-Ga.

Westmoreland's session with the committee was private and the senators did not say whether he discussed just when he thinks the war could end.

Throughout his conversation with them, Russell said Westmoreland always coupled talk of gain with the difficulties to be faced in scoring such advances.

Russell said these troubles include the sanctuary enjoyed by Red forces in Cambodia and Laos, abuse of the demilitarized zone and large supplies of mortars, artillery and rockets, presumably from the Soviet Union.

Westmoreland also appeared before the House Armed Services Committee where, according to Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., he said "there can be the beginning of a phaseout" of U.S. troops in Vietnam within two years if allied progress continues. Ichord said Westmoreland listed as a condition for the phaseout an expansion of the South Vietnamese combat role.

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., said the military commander delivered "a very optimistic report."

Westmoreland was to meet with President Johnson at the White House again today. Informed sources predicted the general would be granted a request for earlier deployment of the previously authorized additional troops. By mid-1968, a total of 525,000 men are to be in Vietnam.

The sources said Westmoreland was not seeking an increase in that total.

Missing Boy Found Unharmed

FAIRFILED, Conn. (AP) -- Two-year-old Tod Plancon, missing since Thursday when a car in which he was seated was stolen, was found unharmed today on an enclosed front porch on a Fairfield home.

Police said Mrs. Stephen Sherwood found the child on her porch shortly after 7 a.m.

Precisely how Tod got there was not immediately determined, but police said he had apparently been put out of the car by the person who stole it and had made his way to the Sherwood porch.

The car was recovered by police late Thursday night after it was apparently abandoned near Mountain Grove cemetery.

Both the boy and his small plastic car seat were missing from the car, authorities said.

Little Tod, son of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Plancon Jr. of Fairfield, was riding in the back seat of the car earlier Thursday when his mother Elaine, 21, stopped to visit a neighbor.

Mrs. Plancon told police she left the child in the car with the motor running while she went to the neighbor's front door.

Before she could ring the doorbell, she said, a boy about 17 years old jumped into the car and drove off.

The mother and the neighbor, Mrs. Burt Andren, were unable to catch the car in the Andren's auto.

Allin Leslie Looks forward To Successful Stage Career

By JERRY OBERMARK

Would you like to have the price of the movies you attend deducted from your taxes as a business expense?

All you have to do is become a professional actor-singer like Allin Leslie.

Not only movies, but theatre tickets, sheet music and possibly even a new color television set are business expenses he expects to deduct from his income taxes.

Leslie was born and reared here. He graduated from Sikeston High School in 1962, then attended Ohio University and graduated in June, 1966, with a bachelor of fine arts degree in radio-television.

From Ohio, he moved to Manhattan and started his career. His only credentials were his talent and an Actors Equity Union Card, which he was able to get because of his work in summer stock with the St. Louis Muny Opera in 1965.

He needed the union card to audition in New York. Actors, singers and dancers read trade newspapers and watch for the calls when a play is to open.

"I was lucky. After about two weeks in New York, I got a part in the chorus of the "Half a Six Pence" road company. He also had a bit part as a newspaper reporter in the show and understudy the part of "Buggins," a chronic pessimist.

Rehearsals started Aug. 1 and the play opened Aug. 22 in Dallas, Tex.

A grueling seven-month tour that included several one-night stands followed before the play closed March 18 in New Haven, Conn.

Leslie said he got to see many of the big cities in the U.S. during the tour, but traveling by bus and living in hotels with little free time presented problems.

"I wore some of my shirts longer than I care to admit between laundries," he said.

A four-month period of unemployment followed the show's closing. Then, he landed a job with the chorus of a Kraft Music Hall special. It was aired in September and starred Rock Hudson.

He also did some night club work in Greenwich Village, singing at the "Upstairs at the Duplex."

Leslie says he likes both acting and singing, but could be happy just singing. Musical comedies also appeal to the young career-minded man.

"I date girls in the chorus occasionally, but don't care to get serious now."

Just before his return to Sikeston, where he is appearing in a concert at 3 p.m. Sunday with Patti McMullin, Terry Burke, Bob Williamson and Malcom Lee at the Holiday Inn, he landed a part in "Cabaret."

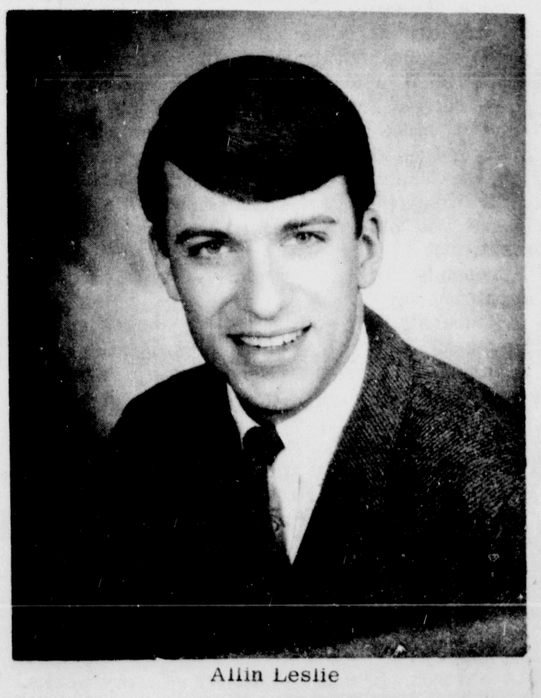

He got the part on his 23rd birthday Oct. 19. Rehearsals will begin later this month in New York. The play will open in late December at the Shubert Theatre in New Haven, Conn., the same theatre where "Half a Six Pence" closed.

It is expected to play for at least a year, including a booking of 16 weeks in Los Angeles and seven weeks in San Francisco.

It is difficult to outline a clear set of goals for a young actor who is playing it by ear. But, Leslie says, "I hope to stay in New York for the next play and get a bit part that can be judged by an agent. Then, possibly land a secondary role, which could lead to an appearance on the "Tonight" show. An appearance there can lead to a variety show, then a recording contract or a part in a musical.

A break could come sooner. Leslie hopes to appear in some night clubs when the "Cabaret" show plays in Los Angeles.

For now, he's looking forward to experiences ahead with the musical.

New Stars May Join Galaxy of Candidates

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- New stars, including one with considerable political magnitude appear amid an expanding galaxy of candidates and possible candidates for Southeast Missouri's seat in Congress.

In Jefferson City the name of Thomas A. David of Farmington, director of the Department of Revenue, is being mentioned as a strong possibility for the office.

And also showing interest is another Farmington man, also well versed in politics, Ray Roberts Jr., an attorney who served two terms in the Missouri Legislature.

These two were matched in prominence by Lynn Twitty, superintendent of schools at Sikeston, who told The Missourian he still is considering the race.

Earlier Twitty, a Southeast Missouri State College graduate, had been mentioned, but was reported to have taken himself out of contention.

David told The Missourian he did not wish to comment and that while people had mentioned the contest to him he had not shown any particular interest.

The two men from Farmington are the first to be suggested from the northern part of the 10th Congressional District.

Rep. Paul C. Jones, who has been congressman for 19 years, has announced he will not be a candidate.

Other candidates, real or avowed, have come thus far from the southern and central parts of the district or from counties to the west.

Mention of David as a possibility brings Gov. Warren E. Hearnes into the picture. The governor has shown no preference from his home congressional district.

However, David was one of his strongest supporters and workers in the race for governor, and Gov. Hearnes rewarded him with the highly important post of director of revenue which pays $15,000 annually.

Whether this show of appreciation would carry over into the congressional race is something else again.

The governor has been working for reorganization of the department of revenue, and David has shown responsibility in making the necessary changes.

It is known that the director feels strongly that he should see the reorganization through and some feel because of this sense of obligation to the state he might spurn offers of support for Congress.

On the other hand, there are a number of others, both politicians and laymen, who believe he has the prestige and the ability for the office and could come in a winner.

David is in his mid-40s. He is a veteran of World War II and won his first election as recorder of deeds in St. Francois County.

Subsequently he was appointed county collector by Gov. John Dalton to fill a vacancy and then went on to election to two terms. He joined the Hearnes bandwagon in the last state campaign and went to Jefferson City before completion of his last term as collector.

Reared in Bonne Terre, David attended the schools there. He is a member of the Baptist Church and was in the Farmington Kiwanis Club. He took an active part in civic affairs and was head of the Cancer Campaign in St. Francois County for several years.

Roberts was out of town and could not be contacted for comment on his position in the contest. He was reported to have shown some interest and was understood to be watching developments closely before making a decision.

Although defeated by a narrow margin for the Legislature in the first election under redistricting, Roberts served two successive terms in the Missouri House.

Now 34 years old, Roberts is a native of Farmington, where he attended schools. He received his undergraduate degree at Westminster College in Fulton and his law degree at the University of Missouri.

He is associated with his father, Raymond Roberts, in practice of law. An Army veteran, he served in the Judge Advocate General's Department and also was a member of the National Guard.

He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, Kiwanis, Elks and the St. Francois County Democratic Club. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts have three children.

Twitty is known to have been urged by many to make the race for Congress. He is a past president of the Missouri State Teachers Association, is a colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve, has served on numerous national education committees and is considered one of Missouri's ablest school administrators.

At Sikeston he has done outstanding work in the public schools and has carried them forward to high recognition in educational circles. His work in education has won him numerous honors and has brought educators from a wide area to consult with him.

He has spent his life in education in Southeast Missouri, as teacher and as administrator, and is widely known both by members of the profession and laymen.

Besides his work in education, Twitty has been a civic leader in Sikeston and has functioned with many organizations.

All of this background of activity has been considered by those who know him and have urged him to make the race.

He said in response to a question by The Missourian that he had not taken himself out of the race, but was watching develop-

California had 114 such quakes, Alaska had 42, New Mexico 26, Montana 25, Nevada 11, Colorado 10, Washington 3, Texas 2, and Idaho, New York, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Virginia and West Virginia had one each.

Not enough is understood about earthquakes -- many caused by volcanic shocks or faulting of the earth's rocks -- for anyone to be able to predict where and when a shock will occur. But research is being conducted by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, as well as other public and private agencies. One of the most promising areas for this research is along California's San Andreas fault, where a weakness in the earth poses the danger of earthquakes at any moment.

The magnitude of earthquakes is measured through a complicated formula on what is known as the Richter scale. Any quake above a magnitude of 8 on that scale is considered "great."

The greatest quakes ever recorded occurred in January 1906 off the coast of Columbia-Ecuador and in March 1923 in Japan. Both shocks were rated 8.9 on Richter scale. Five violent quakes, from 1908 to 1935, killed over a half-million people in China, Italy, Japan and Pakistan.

In July this year, the death total from quakes was 467 -- including 236 in Venezuela, 211 in Turkey and 10 each in Colombia and Algeria. The strongest of those four was the July 22 quake in Turkey, rated 7-7.25 on the Richter scale.

But this year, Aug. 19, set a record in quake statistics. That date marked the longest recorded period without occurrence of a "great" earthquake, one of magnitude 8 or above.

That record began with the March 28, 1964, Alaskan earthquake which had a magnitude of 8.5, caused 131 deaths and about $450 million property damage.

Scientists call 1966 a "dry" year because there were only two earthquakes of magnitude of 6.75 or above.

Until more is known about earthquakes, there is no way of telling what next year, next month -- or even tomorrow -- will bring. But someday, scientists hope, they'll be able to forecast quakes as easily as they can now predict rain.

LBJ Sees Progress in War

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said today "we are pleased with the results we're getting" in the Vietnam war. He also said his military commander "anticipates no increase" in the previously authorized U.S. troop strength in Vietnam.

As for calls for a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam, Johnson told a news conference, Hanoi's own response has shown that stopping the air attacks alone will not bring the Reds to the negotiating table.

He said Hanoi's rejection of his latest offer of peace talks—made last weekend aboard the aircraft carrier Enterprise—had been "clear and complete." That should answer the question of every person in this country who thinks a bombing halt alone will accomplish this end, he said.

"There are some hopeful people and there are some naive people and there are some political people" who advocate a one-sided bombing suspension, but such proposals just "confuse and weaken our position," he said.

As he talked of the situation in Vietnam, Johnson walked a few steps from the lectern in the White House East Room and gestured with his hands and arms.

Reporting on his current talks with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. William C. Westmoreland—both back from Saigon for consultations—Johnson said:

"We are making progress. We are pleased with the results we're getting. We are inflicting greater losses than we are taking."

Johnson said the American people are impatient in war or in a football game, and want the action to build up quickly and the enemy to be defeated rapidly. He swung his arms wide, using his hands to indicate how the progress toward a quick victory might be shown on a chart.

"But it's not that kind of war we're fighting in Vietnam," Johnson said, indicating that its tempo is much slower.

"In 1954 we said we'd stand with those people out there to meet the common danger," Johnson said. "The time came when we had to put up or shut up. We put up."

Johnson said that he had discussed the troop problem Thursday night with Westmoreland. He then recalled that he had previously considered and approved what he called "recommendations of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the force level in Vietnam."

"Gen. Westmoreland," Johnson said, "tells me that he anticipates no increase in that level."

The buildup to 525,000 men is supposed to be accomplished by mid-1968, but Westmoreland has been reported seeking a speed-up to maximum strength before that time.

As of last Saturday, the American troop strength in Vietnam reached 470,000 men, only 2,000 short of the peak U.S. strength in the Korean War 14 years ago.

Congressional sources quoted Westmoreland Thursday as being optimistic about the war's progress and as believing a troop reduction may be possible within two years. But he indicated no early end of the fighting is in sight.

"He sees the enemy losing steadily and continuously," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., after the general appeared Thursday before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Jackson quoted Westmoreland as saying North Vietnamese troops are better equipped than ever but aren't well led and their fighting quality is diminishing.

Even so, he "does not see any early termination of the war," reported the committee chairman, Richard B. Russell, D-Ga.

Westmoreland's session with the committee was private and the senators did not say whether he discussed just when he thinks the war could end.

Throughout his conversation with them, Russell said Westmoreland always coupled talk of gain with the difficulties to be faced in scoring such advances.

Russell said these troubles include the sanctuary enjoyed by Red forces in Cambodia and Laos, abuse of the demilitarized zone and large supplies of mortars, artillery and rockets, presumably from the Soviet Union.

Westmoreland also appeared before the House Armed Services Committee where, according to Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., he said "there can be the beginning of a phaseout" of U.S. troops in Vietnam within two years if allied progress continues. Ichord said Westmoreland listed as a condition for the phaseout an expansion of the South Vietnamese combat role.

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., said the military commander delivered "a very optimistic report."

Westmoreland was to meet with President Johnson at the White House again today. Informed sources predicted the general would be granted a request for earlier deployment of the previously authorized additional troops. By mid-1968, a total of 525,000 men are to be in Vietnam.

The sources said Westmoreland was not seeking an increase in that total.

Missing Boy Found Unharmed

FAIRFILED, Conn. (AP) -- Two-year-old Tod Plancon, missing since Thursday when a car in which he was seated was stolen, was found unharmed to day on an enclosed front porch on a Fairfield home.

Police said Mrs. Stephen Sherwood found the child on her porch shortly after 7 a.m.

Precisely how Tod got there was not immediately determined, but police said he had apparently been put out of the car by the person who stole it and had made his way to the Sherwood porch.

The car was recovered by police late Thursday night after it was apparently abandoned near Mountain Grove cemetery.

Both the boy and his small plastic car seat were missing from the car, authorities said.

Little Tod, son of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Plancon Jr. of Fairfield, was riding in the back seat of the car earlier Thursday when his mother Elaine, 21, stopped to visit a neighbor.

Mrs. Plancon told police she left the child in the car with the motor running while she went to the neighbor's front door.

Before she could ring the doorbell, she said, a boy about 17 years old jumped into the car and drove off.

The mother and the neighbor, Mrs. Burt Andren, were unable to catch the car in the Andren's auto.

Allin Leslie Looks forward To Successful Stage Career

By JERRY OBERMARK

Would you like to have the price of the movies you attend deducted from your taxes as a business expense?

All you have to do is become a professional actor-singer like Allin Leslie.

Not only movies, but theatre tickets, sheet music and possibly even a new color television set are business expenses he expects to deduct from his income taxes.

Leslie was born and reared here. He graduated from Sikeston High School in 1962, then attended Ohio University and graduated in June, 1966, with a bachelor of fine arts degree in radio-television.

From Ohio, he moved to Manhattan and started his career. His only credentials were his talent and an Actors Equity Union Card, which he was able to get because of his work in summer stock with the St. Louis Muny Opera in 1965.

He needed the union card to audition in New York. Actors, singers and dancers read trade newspapers and watch for the calls when a play is to open.

"I was lucky. After about two weeks in New York, I got a part in the chorus of the "Half a Six Pence" road company. He also had a bit part as a newspaper reporter in the show and understudy the part of "Buggins," a chronic pessimist.

Rehearsals started Aug. 1 and the play opened Aug. 22 in Dallas, Tex.

A grueling seven-month tour that included several one-night stands followed before the play closed March 18 in New Haven, Conn.

Leslie said he got to see many of the big cities in the U.S. during the tour, but traveling by bus and living in hotels with little free time presented problems.

"I wore some of my shirts longer than I care to admit between laundries," he said.

A four-month period of unemployment followed the show's closing. Then, he landed a job with the chorus of a Kraft Music Hall special. It was aired in September and starred Rock Hudson.

He also did some night club work in Greenwich Village, singing at the "Upstairs at the Duplex."

Leslie says he likes both acting and singing, but could be happy just singing. Musical comedies also appeal to the young career-minded man.

"I date girls in the chorus occasionally, but don't care to get serious now."

Just before his return to Sikeston, where he is appearing in a concert at 3 p.m. Sunday with Patti McMullin, Terry Burke, Bob Williamson and Malcom Lee at the Holiday Inn, he landed a part in "Cabaret."

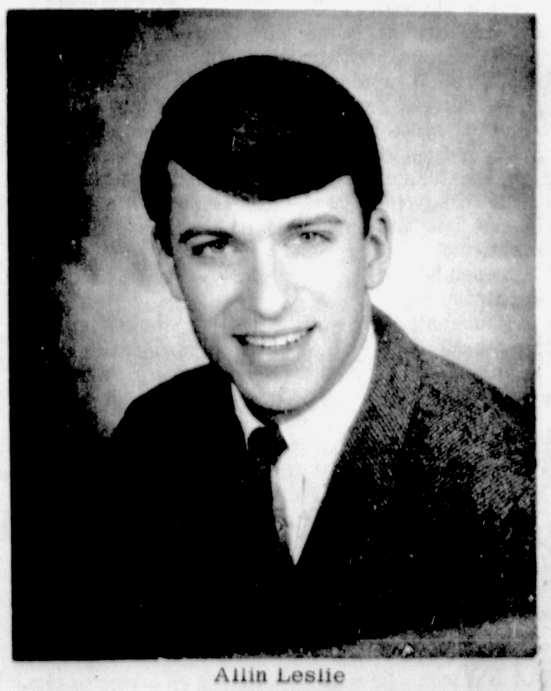

He got the part on his 23rd birthday Oct. 19. Rehearsals will begin later this month in New York. The play will open in late December at the Shubert Theatre in New Haven, Conn., the same theatre where "Half a Six Pence" closed.

It is expected to play for at least a year, including a booking of 16 weeks in Los Angeles and seven weeks in San Francisco.

It is difficult to outline a clear set of goals for a young actor who is playing it by ear. But, Leslie says, "I hope to stay in New York for the next play and get a bit part that can be judged by an agent. Then, possibly land a secondary role, which could lead to an appearance on the "Tonight" show. An appearance there can lead to a variety show, then a recording contract or a part in a musical.

A break could come sooner. Leslie hopes to appear in some night clubs when the "Cabaret" show plays in Los Angeles.

For now, he's looking forward to experiences ahead with the musical.

New Stars May Join Galaxy of Candidates

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- New stars, including one with considerable political magnitude appear amid an expanding galaxy of candidates and possible candidates for Southeast Missoui's seat in Congress.

In Jefferson City the name of Thomas A. David of Farmington, director of the Department of Revenue, is being mentioned as a strong possibility for the office.

And also showing interest is another Farmington man, also well versed in politics, Ray Roberts Jr., an attorney who served two terms in the Missouri Legislature.

These two were matched in prominence by Lynn Twitty, superintendent of schools at Sikeston, who told The Missourian he still is considering the race.

Earlier Twitty, a Southeast Missouri State College graduate, had been mentioned, but was reported to have taken himself out of contention.

David told The Missourian he did not wish to comment and that while people had mentioned the contest to him he had not shown any particular interest.

The two men from Farmington are the first to be suggested from the northern part of the 10th Congressional District.

Rep. Paul C. Jones, who has been congressman for 19 years, has announced he will not be a candidate.

Other candidates, real or avowed, have come thus far from the southern and central parts of the district or from counties to the west.

Mention of David as a possibility brings Gov. Warren E. Hearnes into the picture. The governor has shown no preference from his home congressional district.

However, David was one of his strongest supporters and workers in the race for governor, and Gov. Hearnes rewarded him with the highly important post of director of revenue which pays $15,000 annually.

Whether this show of appreciation would carry over into the congressional race is something else again.

The governor has been working for reorganization of the department of revenue, and David has shown responsibility in making the necessary changes.

It is known that the director feels strongly that he should see the reorganization through and some feel because of this sense of obligation to the state he might spurn offers of support for Congress.

On the other hand, there are a number of others, both politicians and laymen, who believe he has the prestige and the ability for the office and could come in a winner.

David is in his mid-40s. He is a veteran of World War II and won his first election as recorder of deeds in St. Francois County.

Subsequently he was appointed county collector by Gov. John Dalton to fill a vacancy and then went on to election to two terms. He joined the Hearnes bandwagon in the last state campaign and went to Jefferson City before completion of his last term as collector.

Reared in Bonne Terre, David attended the schools there. He is a member of the Baptist Church and was in the Farmington Kiwanis Club. He took an active part in civic affairs and was head of the Cancer Campaign in St. Francois County for several years.

Roberts was out of town and could not be contacted for comment on his position in the contest. He was reported to have shown some interest and was understood to be watching developments closely before making a decision.

Although defeated by a narrow margin for the Legislature in the first election under redistricting, Roberts served two successive terms in the Missouri House.

Now 34 years old, Roberts is a native of Farmington, where he attended schools. He received his undergraduate degree at Westminster College in Fulton and his law degree at the University of Missouri.

He is associated with his father, Raymond Roberts, in practice of law. An Army veteran, he served in the Judge Advocate General's Department and also was a member of the National Guard.

He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, Kiwanis, Elks and the St. Francois County Democratic Club. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts have three children.

Twitty is known to have been urged by many to make the race for Congress. He is a past president of the Missouri State Teachers Association, is a colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve, has served on numerous national education committees and is considered one of Missouri's ablest school administrators.

At Sikeston he has done outstanding work in the public schools and has carried them forward to high recognition in educational circles. His work in education has won him numerous honors and has brought educators from a wide area to consult with him.

He has spent his life in education in Southeast Missouri, as teacher and as administrator, and is widely known both by members of the profession and laymen.

Besides his work in education, Twitty has been a civic leader in Sikeston and has functioned with many organizations.

All of this background of activity has been considered by those who know him and have urged him to make the race.

He said in response to a question by The Missourian that he had not taken himself out of the race, but was watching develop-

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A THANKLESS PEOPLE?

No country in the long, stumbling history of mankind has enjoyed the riches America accepts as a matter of course. Nowhere is wealth so widely distributed.

While other peoples struggle to subsist, the United States pyramids its gross national product toward $700 billion a year. And a $3000 income, which would be affluence over most of the globe, is a mark of poverty here.

Uncle Sam is the Golden Boy of destiny. We are, indeed, a democracy of high fortune. Where is there a nation so girded in freedoms and opportunity for human dignity?

Have we earned all this? Any soul among us might possibly have been born in China or Russia or Dahomey, Africa.

As American tables groan under turkey and the savory trimmings, two-thirds of the world's bellies are thin with hunger. While some of us attend church services today in absolute freedom of religion, of speech, of assembly, half the globe's population doesn't even know what personal liberties mean.

Perhaps a holiday is not the time to ponder blessings against a backdrop of alien worlds in poverty and chains, and teeming with disadvantaged masses we don't even want to read about. Perhaps it is.

While we nestle in luxury's lap, which we complacently take for granted, all too often we appear a thankless, thoughtless and grasping people.

Is this a nation of ingrates?

With fat profits and fat wages, in many cases unprecedented, labor and management keep up an intermittent battle, with strikes or threats of strikes harassing the economy. A generation of youth, reared in ease and comparative wealth, is restless; well-fed beatnik fringes riot on campuses and rebel at essential authority.

Crime flourishes and the people fail to demand crackdown in courts, infected by a cult of permissiveness.

Using the liberties, to which they have a right, splinter minorities whomp up "marches," "teach-ins," "howl-ins" in attempts to smash United States policy in Vietnam, which is in traditional defense of the liberties we enjoy, the honor the country must preserve.

While our casualties mount toward 250 a week in Viet foxholes and guerrilla-infested deltas, some pretentious theorists try to render these patriotic sacrifices null and void.

Racial demonstrations in the streets, starting out to be peaceful, have degenerated to Watts rioting and the murder of rights workers in the South. Yet race conditions have immensely improved, and the Negro is fast approaching the citizen status to which he has long been entitled. Can murder and mayhem, or incitation to violence on either side, possibly help?

Are we, indeed, a nation of ingrates?

Aspects of our conduct suggest we do not understand, or appreciate, what we have in such material and spiritual abundance. The largely inarticulate sentiment of the vast majority of Americans, however, hardly supports a consensus of ingratitude or lack of awareness for our national endowment.

We don't wear our thanksgiving on our sleeves, but we feel it and have it -- if too infrequently expressed. During the last 20 years America has distributed more than $115,-000,000,000 of our national treasure to virtually every needy nation on earth. Sometimes, even judgment but shows a pervading compassion. No country in all annals has been so generous.

The overwhelming millions of Americans back the policy of defense in South Vietnam, the major fault-finding being that the President has not gone far enough to win a prompt, decisive victory.

The racial issue has found a people, in its Congress and increasingly in daily life, seeking to right palpable wrongs in a realistic way. Church membership in the United States has grown more than 3,000,000 a year, and new church structures have been built with unheard of rapidity at costs of hundreds of millions.

All these are indications that among most of us there is a deep-seated acknowledgment and gratefulness, for what Providence has given us -- the civil and spiritual freedoms to build prosperity and to enjoy it with a right humility.

Ogden Nash in caustic humor once wrote:

"Thanksgiving, like Ambassadors, Cabinet officers and others smeared with political ointment,

"Depends for its existence on Presidential appointment."

It doesn't have to. Surely it should be more frequent than once-a-year proclamation from Pennsylvania Avenue. None in the world have, or ever had, so much that clamors for thanks.

In a dyspeptic mood the other day, some of the saints and patriots fell to lamenting over high taxes, hippies, computers, draft card burners, greedy members of Congress, loudmouthed politicians just before election day, crusaders with holy causes, disrespect for constituted authority, and other ills which beset us.

Out of the indigo haze came a Pollyanna type saint, whose answer was:

"Well, we're still first, ain't we?"

That silenced the anvil chorus for a spell, but later, when I thumbed through a World Economic Almanac, and compared the average annual incomes of a few places, I had to demur.

In the United States, we come out at $2,635 a year, per person, an average, while Kuwait, a tiny fragment of oil rich land near the head of the Persian Gulf, boasts of $2,875 average annually per capita.

I found some consolation in the fact that averages don't always tell the whole truth, recalling the story about the fellow who had one foot on a cake of dry ice and the other in a pail of scalding water -- his average pedal temperature should have been right comfortable.

SAFEGUARD THE TREE

Heard in the land these days are the annual warnings to be careful to guard the Christmas tree against the danger of fire. Now, no matter how many times you may have read and heard these admonitions, you should not forget that they are wise and that neglect of them may bring serious and costly consequences.

As a matter of fact, we imagine, nearly everybody must be fully aware of the proper precautions. Electric wiring should be checked against short circuits. Care should be taken against overloading any one circuit. No tree should be placed near curtains or other flammable materials. Lights should not be left burning for long periods unless someone is at hand. Provisions for putting out fire are essential.

In brief, remind yourself of what should be done to safeguard the tree and then be sure to do it.

"The State of Oregon is not impoverished and it should not knuckle down to congressional coercion in the highway safety program," says the Portland, Oregonian. ". . . Oregon should adopt the traffic safety measures it considers workable and in the public interest and tell the federal government to go fly a kite. If this state would take the lead in organizing a revolt of the states against federal dictatorship, Congress would quickly change its mind. After all, members of Congress are elected by the people, although they seem to forget it between elections."

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — "What is it really like to be a newspaper columnist?"

That is the question readers most frequently ask and, after only 24 years in the industry, the one I find hardest to answer.

It was best described, in my opinion, by the late Don Marquis, who was a columnist for many years before he repented and became a playwright. He said of his former occupation that it amounted to "digging a daily grave."

There do seem to be some public misconceptions of a columnist's pattern of existence.

For example, some people feel he is a person who dwells in a penthouse, rides to work in a chauffeur-driven limousine, and has a salary adequate for the ransom of 12 captive princes. He is supposed to have lunch with industrial tycoons, spend his afternoons giving confidential advice to world-renowned diplomats and his evenings running his fingers through the minds, if any, of beautiful movie stars.

Beloved friends and dear questioners, that ain't quite the way a normal red-blooded American newspaper columnist really lives.

He lives, as most people do, on the edge of his personal desperation. He has two big problems in life: (1) to find a new idea each day that will save him from mental bankruptcy, and (2) to earn enough money to provide bread for his children and milk to keep his ulcers quiet.

His biggest yearning in life is somehow to find a way to surprise his wife with a fur coat — made of any kind of fur — before she expires.

The next-most-often-asked question that makes a newspaper columnist sigh is this one: "What do you do besides writing your column?"

The clear implication here is that it is somehow undignified or un-American for a man to do nothing but compose 500 words of prose a day, Monday through Friday. He is expected to have more than one arrow in his quiver.

Some columnists may do other things. Some moonlight by driving taxicabs over the weekend. Others try to achieve respectability by pretending they are writing a book.

The actual truth of the matter, however, is that a majority of columnists spend any spare time at their disposal in gnawing their fingernails or going to parties.

Several times a day a columnist gets by telegram or mail missives that begin:

"You are cordially invited to —."

"We'd be sincerely delighted to have your presence at—."

These invitations are for functions that run the full gamut from boredom to tedium.

In a single day it is possible for a columnist to be invited to the unveiling of a new tractor at the Waldorf, to gnaw cold salmon with a literary lion at the Plaza, or to act as a judge at the Americana in a contest to determine which secretary in Manhattan has the prettiest dimple on her left knee.

But a columnist's health is not measured by the number of cocktail parties he helps launch but by the number of such functions he has the strength to abstain from.

Most of the time he can have more fun just sitting there before an ominously silent typewriter, a vacant look on his face as he stares hopefully up at that same old familiar spot on the ceiling, wondering when the lightning will strike.

See you next Monday.

From November 18 to November 22 hunters will be allowed to use firearms in their quest of deer in Missouri. With this in mind, deer hunters were reminded today by the Missouri State Highway Patrol of two State statutes that deal with hunting and shooting.

Section 560.570 of the Missouri Revised Statutes prohibits a person to hunt on the property of another without the consent of the owner or person in charge of the property. Section 564.520 prohibits a person to shoot along or across a public highway.

"These two sections of the law were designed to protect the individual landowner's property and to insure the safety of the general public," noted Colonel E. L. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol. "I urge the many hunters who will be out during these designated deer hunting days to respect the rights of property owners and to refrain from endangering the safety of others."

A Miracle -- as Far as it Goes

By DON OAKLEY

They call it the "miracle" of the industry's comback, and only the unsatisfied demands a labor for a bigger piece of the miracle and keeping the smiles worn by railroad executives from being broader than they are.

In 1966, the nation's rail lines carried seven per cent more frieght than they did in 1965, making it the fifth consecutive year in which freight traffic and profits have increased after 32 years of decline.

In 1966, the railroads spent more than a billion dollars on new frieght cars, injecting adrenaline into another industry since some 20 tons of steel go into each car.

Piggybacking - transporting truck trailers and containers on flatcars - is another important factor in the comeback.

Last year, 27,000 flatcars were in piggyback service, 5,400 more than the year before. Piggyback traffic, which has increased sixfold in the past 10 years, is expected to tripple in volume in the next 10.

The railroads can be rightfully proud of their comback, which is no miracle but due to the imaginative development and aggressive selling of new equimpent techniques and services.

Now, if only they could think of something to do for the poor, neglected, unwanted, abandoned, ertwhile passenger.

There would be a miracle.

Seat Belts Save Lives

Researchers at the University of Michigan report findings from an intensive study of 177 fatalities in automobile accidents. Lap seat belts would have saved the lives of 40 per cent of the victims, and diagonal shoulder straps used with lap belts would have saved an additional 13 per cent. They add that a majority of nonfatal injuries covered by their study would have been prevented by the wearing of seat belts.

Dogs Reluctant To Put on Dog

It's a sobering thought to learn that people are seeking professional help to learn how to get along with their dogs.

And it lessens the shock only a little to know that this is going on in such places as Beverly Hills, Calif., where the psychiatrist's couch is an essential to the well-adjusted life as the private swimming pool and the vintage car.

This intriguing aspect of the life and times of modern man, circa 1967, is revealed in an exhaustive study by The Wall Street Journal, which will on occasion go to the dogs to bring its readers basic news.

The study also discloses that dogs are reasonable and even abstemious in their taste for doghouses.

It is, in fact, this spartan carine attitude in the face of owner insistence on forcing fancy doghouses on them that brings dogs and their masters to such imposing establishments as the Canine Behavor Institute of Beverly Hills for what the institute calls "psychological adjustment" of the parties concerned.

It is not at all unusual for pampered pets to turn up their purebred noses at palatial doghouses and insist on something simpler. Dogs commonly scorn such doghouse furbelows as air conditioning, radiant heat and picture windows for just a plain old unadorned house. Democracy in action!

Nevertheless, many dog owners insist on buying a poodle-sized tent of mink for $400 or of chinchilla for $500. And for an additional $750 Fifi can sleep in a chinchilla bed.

And a New Jersey banker. The Journal reports, is happily paying $1,500 for a green ad gold stucco home with a gold drinking fountain and a red velvet cushion for his German shepherd.

A lot of less affluent dog lovers, you have to suspect, would shed few tears if the German shepherd chewed up the red velvet cushion, left the gold fountain running until it folded the green and gold doggy mansion, and insisted upon sleeping on a comfortable old blanket like many a disadvantaged pooch who, strangely enough, seems to regard his owner as a king.

In the course of browsing around in the public prints of the day, we ran across a paragraph from The Journal-Times of Racine, Wis. It read: "The shortest interval of time known to science is the infinitesimal fraction of a second which elapses between the first faint hint that the traffic light may turn green and the blast of the horn by the genial gentleman at the wheel of the car behind."

A CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Rep Paul Findley (R-Ill.) recently went on record as urging a U. S. food processing company to cancel heavy orders of soybean oil from the Soviet Union. The congressman said the company has total orders for more than 73 million pounds of soybean oil from Russia, which is the equivalent of about seven million bushels of soybeans. This is said to be the biggest import of edible oil from the country in more than 25 years.

In a telegram to the president of the company, Rep. Findley said: "You are, I believe, within your legal right to purchase this massive quantity of edible oil at the cut rate prices from Moscow. But with more than 14,-000 American soldiers killed and 90,000 others wounded in Vietnam-many of them by Soviet weapons--I question your moral right."

I agree with the gentleman from Illinois. I do not believe in trading with the enemy.

The trouble is the food company in question bears a name that sometimes causes people to think I am connected with it. After a new item about the soybean oil was published, a California newspaper received an irate letter from an anonymous writer who obviously knows about my strong anti-communism and who wanted to know if I "speak from both sides of the face." He thought a company I head was buying the soybean oil.

This is not the case. The food processing company I head is called HLH Products, and it is not connected in any way with any other food company. We have bought no soybean oil from Russia. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Important test for Pan American progress takes place today; ex-bachelor senator gets rebuked by new wife; Pentagon prepares plans to knock out China's nuclear laboratories.

WASHINGTON -- Today (Nov. 17) the Pan American Union, now better known as the Organization of American States, elects the man who will pilot it for the next ten years. This is the most important international job in the western hemisphere, comparable to U Thant's job as secretary general of the United Nations.

Unfortunately, the job has been subject to a lot of petty politics in the past. Personalities have been put ahead of public welfare. There has also been suspicion that the United States wanted to dominate the OAS.

This time, however, the 20 Pan American Republics have a chance to put one of the top leaders of the hemisphere in the post of secretary general. He is Galo Plaza, ex-president of Ecuador, and the man who has worked for the United Nations in handling the crisis in Lebanon when President Eisenhower landed troops, the Cyprus crisis over which the Greeks and Turks came close to war, U.N. sent in a police force. Galo Plaza has also undertaken an important mission to Haiti to try to head off the explosion in that unhappy country certain to come when President Duvalier exits.

Last year, Drew Pearson, who has spent part of his newspaper career specializing in Latin American affairs, flew to Ecuador, talked to ex-President Plaza, urged him to become a candidate for secretary general of the OAS. Plaza was reluctant. He considered it important to remain in Quito to help restore Ecuadorian Democracy and stability.

Returning to Washington, Pearson urged the state department and other Pan American diplomats to back Galo Plaza as the best man to pilot the OAS. Ambassador Sol Linowitz, the dynamic XEROX executive whom LBJ persuaded to become U.S. Ambassador to the OAS, readily concurred. So did some other diplomats, though many are pledged to vote for their own favorite son on the first ballot.

Plaza's chief handicap is that he was born in New York and is considered the state department's candidate. What most people don't know is that it is an enterprising American newspaperman, rather than the state department, who is really promoting him.

The showdown comes today. It will be interesting to see whether personal politics or Pan American progress wins out in steering the future course of the Western Hemisphere.

EX-BACHELOR SENATOR'S WIFE

Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., is famous for being both a crusader for the consumer and a great persuader. He doesn't orate. But he does persuade his colleagues to line up behind his bills. His displeasure with a commerce committee vote on a smoking measure caused winning opponents to withdraw and compromise on his terms. Opponents of auto safety also withdrew before his mingled persuasion and wrath.

Long a bachelor, Magnuson finally persuaded beautiful Jermaine Peralta to love, honor and obey him "until death do us part."

Recently the senator and his lady were driving; she, happily smoking a cigarette; he, lecturing her on the evils thereof.

"Didn't you pay any attention to our hearings?" asked the senator from Washington, "Surely you know how hazardous smoking is."

Jermaine turned to her lord and master, giving him a full look from under deep-fringed eyelashes.

"Why don't you fasten your seat belt?" she asked. Magnuson did.

KNOCKING OUT CHINA?

It probably won't be admitted officially, but the joint chiefs have just completed a new set of plans for knocking out the Chinese nuclear works located deep in the interior. These are strictly contingency plans, of course, which would not be used unless the Chinese attacked the United States first.

The plans were formulated after it became known last summer that China had developed limited missiles. In September, therefore, high-ranking officers from the joint chiefs' technical staff traveled to the Far East on a secret mission to assemble the latest intelligence on China's nuclear complex and its vulnerability. From this information, the plans for attack have now been updated.

It is no particular secret that China could be easily knocked out of the nuclear race in case of open warfare between the two countries. No doubt this has had a powerful restraining influence upon Red Chinese leaders. They have issued public taunts that Uncle Sam is a paper tiger, but nevertheless have taken care not to twist the tiger's tail.

However, the behavior of Mao Tse-Tung is unpredictable. He appears to have turned China at times into a massive lunatic asylum which has caused Pentagon planners to wonder whether the Chinese might take a foolish, suicidal, military gamble.

As a result, Secretary of Defense McNamara ordered construction of a limited antiballistic missiles system, which could knock down the intercontinental missiles the Chinese are expected to develop in the 1970s. In addition the joint chiefs prepared plans for a possible, irrational Chinese move which might come before the 1970s.

Most authorities don't expect such a move. But the Pentagon's policy is to hope for the best and prepare for the worst.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Quiet Revolution: Labor's Skilled Trade Unions To Open Doors Wide to Negroes of All Ghettos

Washington, D.C. -- Labor's inner establishment is about to lift the color blinds.

Leaders of those artisans whose skills make possible the ripping out of the inner cities' inner slums, the unrolling of thousands of miles of ribbons of concrete roads, the rising of 100-story structures -- namely, the chiefs of the AFL-CIO building and construction trades unions -- have decided to tell tens of thousands of Negro youths to come on in.

The word soon will go to thousands of local unions whose members now earn on any clear day from $6 to $8 an hour. These locals will be told by their national chiefs to go into the ghettos and seek out those disadvantaged" young men who want to work -- and to tell them now for the first time they need only mind and muscle and will. The Negroes no longer will be told they are welcome only if they qualify or they have talent or if they can pass a test to get into the $2.60-an-hour apprenticeship training schools jointly run by labor and management.

For this is THE revolution. The plumbers, the electricians, the operating engineers, the masons and bricklayers, the old father-son, blood-relations membership unions will stomp tradition. They will rip themselves out of the old high button shoes, bowler hat tradition.

If they follow their leaders they will tell the Negro youngsters that the union men themselves will go into the slums to train them to pass the tests -- whether or not the young men can read or reckon the tough technical strictures which today guide those who burrow underground or raise steel and glass structures into the skies.

The old construction trades -- whose 3.5 million members have always been labor's establishment -- have come upon their new flexibility slowly but certainly if advance advice from this trillion-dollar front is accurate. And I believe it is.

For on November 29 in a large conference hall of the Hotel Americana, Bal Harbour, Fla., a veteran warrior by name of C.J. "Neal" Haggerty, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Dept., will rise to read his report to the Department's national convention. In the hall with him will be the rock-solid leaders of 18 national unions to whom anonymity is both a virtue and unshakable strength. In the past a newsman, even one who is an old friend, could more easily whip up a dialogue with the Sphinx than he could with these influential men.

And "Neal" will say, in effect, that he believes that the vast field of urban renewal and rehabilitation will for generations to come be the most important section of the building and construction trades industry -- not dams, nor roads, not airports, but the "de-rat-ing," the unslumming, the pouring of new boulevards, the remaking of a thousand cities.

The time, he will advise his peers, is now to "get in" and work with the Housing and Urban Development Dept., the Labor Dept., the Justice Dept. (equal opportunity enforcement division). All this will mean the employment of disadvantaged of Negro youths to come on in, workers in the areas being rehabilitated; the training of the ghetto area youth. These will be the major considerations in the demonstration cities programs.

His report will say that each of "our" local unions in these areas must consider accepting into its membership those who live in the blighted districts, not only where and when they are qualified as "journeymen," but also those who are unskilled.

These local unions now should institute learner or trainee programs for those youths now on street corners -- if they show any aptitude or interest in construction work.

To insiders the fantastic words are "journeymen" and trainee programs. No Horatio ever guarded a bridgehead more tightly than these unions protected their portals against the influx of "journeymen." The word describes the full-fledged member -- the $5.85-an-hour plumber; the $7.90-an-hour operating engineer; the $10-an-hour (double time) iron worker. Now what "Neal" will say is: let the Negro and Puerto Rican and Mexican American and American Indian in if he can handle the job or help him in if he can't. Help the youth pass the test so he can serve his five-year apprenticeship and move into the journeymen status wherever you find the kinds who don't look down on construction work but believe that centuries can be leap-frogged only with white collar status.

There will be jobs for all in this construction program. Government plans call for the expenditure of trillions, not just billions (76.5 billion for this fiscal year alone). Government planners are thinking in terms of decades of construction, not just months or years.

And when "Neal" speaks there will be in that hall the men with whom the construction union chiefs have battled -- Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and Housing developer, Secretary Robert Weaver. They will speak publicly, too. But first there will have been the breaking of bread at a private luncheon.

This could be the quiet revolution to end all those fiery o es in the streets.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A THANKLESS PEOPLE?

No country in the long, stumbling history of mankind has enjoyed the riches America accepts as a matter of course. Nowhere is wealth so widely distributed.

While other peoples struggle to subsist, the United States pyramids its gross national product toward $700 billion a year. And a $3000 income, which would be affluence over most of the globe, is a mark of poverty here.

Uncle Sam is the Golden Boy of destiny. We are, indeed, a democracy of high fortune. Where is there a nation so girded in freedoms and opportunity for human dignity?

Have we earned all this? Any soul among us might possibly have been born in China or Russia or Dahomey, Africa.

As American tables groan under turkey and the savory trimmings, two-thirds of the world's bellies are thin with hunger. While some of us attend church services today in absolute freedom of religion, of speech, of assembly, half the globe's population doesn't even know what personal liberties mean.

Perhaps a holiday is not the time to ponder blessings against a backdrop of alien worlds in poverty and chains, and teeming with disadvantaged masses we don't even want to read about. Perhaps it is.

While we nestle in luxury's lap, which we complacently take for granted, all too often we appear a thankless, thoughtless and grasping people.

Is this a nation of ingrates?

With fat profits and fat wages, in many cases unprecedented, labor and management keep up an intermittent battle, with strikes or threats of strikes harassing the economy. A generation of youth, reared in ease and comparative wealth, is restless; well-fed beatnik fringes riot on campuses and rebel at essential authority.

Crime flourishes and the people fail to demand crackdown in courts, infected by a cult of permissiveness.

Using the liberties, to which they have a right, splinter minorities whomp up "marches," "teach-ins," "howl-ins" in attempts to smash United States policy in Vietnam, which is in traditional defense of the liberties we enjoy, the honor the country must preserve.

While our casualties mount toward 250 a week in Viet foxholes and guerrilla-infested deltas, some pretentious theorists try to render these patriotic sacrifices null and void.

Racial demonstrations in the streets, starting out to be peaceful, have degenerated to Watts rioting and the murder of rights workers in the South. Yet race conditions have immensely improved, and the Negro is fast approaching the citizen status to which he has long been entitled. Can murder and mayhem, or incitation to violence on either side, possibly help?

Are we, indeed, a nation of ingrates?

Aspects of our conduct suggest we do not understand, or appreciate, what we have in such material and spiritual abundance. The largely inarticulate sentiment of the vast majority of Americans, however, hardly supports a consensus of ingratitude or lack of awareness for our national endowment.

We don't wear our thanksgiving on our sleeves, but we feel it and have it -- if too infrequently expressed. During the last 20 years America has distributed more than $115,-000,000,000 of our national treasure to virtually every needy nation on earth. Sometimes, even judgment but shows a pervading compassion. No country in all annals has been so generous.

The overwhelming millions of Americans back the policy of defense in South Vietnam, the major fault-finding being that the President has not gone far enough to win a prompt, decisive victory.

The racial issue has found a people, in its Congress and increasingly in daily life, seeking to right palpable wrongs in a realistic way. Church membership in the United States has grown more than 3,000,000 a year, and new church structures have been built with unheard of rapidity at costs of hundreds of millions.

All these are indications that among most of us there is a deep-seated acknowledgment and gratefulness, for what Providence has given us -- the civil and spiritual freedoms to build prosperity and to enjoy it with a right humility.

Ogden Nash in caustic humor once wrote:

"Thanksgiving, like Ambassadors, Cabinet officers and others smeared with political ointment,

"Depends for its existence on Presidential appointment."

It doesn't have to. Surely it should be more frequent than once-a-year proclamation from Pennsylvania Avenue. None in the world have, or ever had, so much that clamors for thanks.

Out of the indigo haze came a Pollyanna type saint, whose answer was:

"Well, we're still first, ain't we?"

That silenced the anvil chorus for a spell, but later, when I thumbed through a World Economic Almanac, and compared the average annual incomes of a few places, I had to demur.

In the United States, we come out at $2,635 a year, per person, an average, while Kuwait, a tiny fragment of oil rich land near the head of the Persian Gulf, boasts of $2,875 average annually per capita.

I found some consoliation in the fact that averages don't always tell the whole truth, recalling the story about the fellow who had one foot on a cake of dry ice and the other in a pail of scalding water -- his average pedal temperature should have been right comfortable.

SAFEGUARD THE TREE

Heard in the land these days are the annual warnings to be careful to guard the Christmas tree against the danger of fire. Now, no matter how many times you may have read and heard these admonitions, you should not forget that they are wise and that neglect of them may bring serious and costly consequences.

As a matter of fact, we imagine, nearly everybody must be fully aware of the proper precautions. Electric wiring should be checked against short circuits. Care should be taken against overloading any one circuit. No tree should be placed near curtains or other flammable materials. Lights should not be left burning for long periods unless someone is at hand. Provisions for putting out fire are essential.

In brief, remind yourself of what should be done to safeguard the tree and then be sure to do it.

NEW YORK (AP) — "What is it really like to be a newspaper columnist?"

That is the question readers most frequently ask and, after only 24 years in the industry, the one I find hardest to answer.

It was best described, in my opinion, by the late Don Marquis, who was a columnist for many years before he repented and became a playwright. He said of his former occupation that it amounted to "digging a daily grave."

There do seem to be some public misconceptions of a columnist's pattern of existence.

For example, some people feel he is a person who dwells in a penthouse, rides to work in a chauffeur-driven limousine, and has a salary adequate for the ransom of 12 captive princes. He is supposed to have lunch with industrial tycoons, spend his afternoons giving confidential advice to world-renowned diplomats and his evenings running his fingers through the minds, if any, of beautiful movie stars.

Beloved friends and dear questioners, that ain't quite the way a normal red-blooded American newspaper columnist really lives.

He lives, as most people do, on the edge of his personal desperation. He has two big problems in life: (1) to find a new idea each day that will save him from mental bankruptcy, and (2) to earn enough money to provide bread for his children and milk to keep his ulcers quiet.

His biggest yearning in life is somehow to find a way to surprise his wife with a fur coat — made of any kind of fur — before she expires.

The next-most-often-asked question that makes a newspaper columnist sigh is this one: "What do you do besides writing your column?"

The clear implication here is that it is somehow undignified or un-American for a man to do nothing but compose 500 words of prose a day, Monday through Friday. He is expected to have more than one arrow in his quiver.

Some columnists may do other things. Some moonlight by driving taxicabs over the weekend. Others try to achieve respectability by pretending they are writing a book.

The actual truth of the matter, however, is that a majority of columnists spend any spare time at their disposal in gnawing their fingernails or going to parties.

Several times a day a columnist gets by telegram or mail missives that begin:

"You are cordially invited to —."

"We'd be sincerely delighted to have your presence at—."

These invitations are for functions that run the full gamut from boredom to tedium.

In a single day it is possible for a columnist to be invited to the unveiling of a new tractor at the Waldorf, to gnaw cold salmon with a literary lion at the Plaza, or to act as a judge at the Americana in a contest to determine which secretary in Manhattan has the prettiest dimple on her left knee.

But a columnist's health is not measured by the number of cocktail parties he helps launch but by the number of such functions he has the strength to abstain from.

Most of the time he can have more fun just sitting there before an ominously silent typewriter, a vacant look on his face as he stares hopefully up at that same old familiar spot on the ceiling, wondering when the lightning will strike.

See you next Monday.

Section 560.570 of the Missouri Revised Statutes prohibits a person to hunt on the property of another without the consent of the owner or person in charge of the property. Section 564.520 prohibits a person to shoot along or across a public highway.

A Miracle -- as Far as it Goes

By DON OAKLEY

They call it the "miracle" of the industry's comback, and only the unsatisfied demands a labor for a bigger piece of the miracle and keeping the smiles worn by railroad executives from being broader than they are.

In 1966, the nation's rail lines carried seven per cent more frieght than they did in 1965, making it the fifth consecutive year in which freight traffic and profits have increased after 32 years of decline.

In 1966, the railroads spent more than a billion dollars on new frieght cars, injecting adrenaline into another industry since some 20 tons of steel go into each car.

Piggybacking - transporting truck trailers and containers on flatcars - is another important factor in the comeback.

Last year, 27,000 flatcars were in piggyback service, 5,400 more than the year before. Piggyback traffic, which has increased six-fold in the past 10 years, is expected to tripple in volume in the next 10.

The railroads can be rightfully proud of their comback, which is no miracle but due to the imaginative development and aggressive selling of new equimpent techniques and services.

Now, if only they could think of something to do for the poor, neglected, unwanted, abandoned, ertwhile passenger.

There would be a miracle.

Most authorities don't expect such a move. But the Pentagon's policy is to hope for the best and prepare for the worst.

This intriguing aspect of the life and times of modern man, circa 1967, is revealed in an exhaustive study by The Wall Street Journal, which will on occasion go to the dogs to bring its readers basic news.

The study also discloses that dogs are reasonable and even abstemious in their taste for doghouses.

It is, in fact, this spartan carine attitude in the face of owner insistence on forcing fancy doghouses on them that brings dogs and their masters to such imposing establishments as the Canine Behaivor Institute of Beverly Hills for what the institute calls "psychological adjustment" of the parties concerned.

It is not at all unusual for pampered pets to turn up their purebred noses at palatial doghouses and insist on something simpler. Dogs commonly scorn such doghouse furbelows as air conditioning, radiant heat and picture windows for just a plain old unadorned house. Democracy in action!

Nevertheless, many dog owners insist on buying a poodle-sized tent of mink for $400 or of chinchilla for $500. And for an additional $750 Fifi can sleep in a chinchilla bed.

And a New Jersey banker. The Journal reports, is happily paying $1,500 for a green ad gold stucco home with a gold drinking fountain and a red velvet cushion for his German shepherd.

A lot of less affluent dog lovers, you have to suspect, would shed few tears if the German shepherd chewed up the red velvet cushion, left the gold fountain running until it folded the green and gold doggy mansion, and insisted upon sleeping on a comfortable old blanket like many a disadvantaged pooch who, strangely enough, seems to regard his owner as a king.

* * *

In the course of browsing around in the public prints of the day, we ran across a paragraph from The Journal-Times of Racine, Wis. It read: "The shortest interval of time known to science is the infinitesimal fraction of a second which elapses between the first faint hint that the traffic light may turn green and the blast of the horn by the genial gentleman at the wheel of the car behind."

* * *

If non-academic sex was good enough for my grandfather -- I always say -- it is good enough for me.

Two camels trudged along side by side in a caravan crossing the burning desert. Finally one looked around furtively and said: "I don't care what anybody says, I'm thirsty."

H.L. Hunt Says

A CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Rep Paul Findley (R-Ill.) recently went on record as urging a U. S. food processing company to cancel heavy orders of soybean oil from the Soviet Union. The congressman said the company has total orders for more than 73 million pounds of soybean oil from Russia, which is the equivalent of about seven million bushels of soybeans. This is said to be the biggest import of edible oil from the country in more than 25 years.

In a telegram to the president of the company, Rep. Findley said: "You are, I believe, within your legal right to purchase this massive quantity of edible oil at the cut rate prices from Moscow. But with more than 14,-000 American soldiers killed and 90,000 others wounded in Vietnam-many of them by Soviet weapons--I question your moral right."

I agree with the gentleman from Illinois. I do not believe in trading with the enemy.

The trouble is the food company in question bears a name that sometimes causes people to think I am connected with it. After a new item about the soybean oil was published, a California newspaper received an irate letter from an anonymous writer who obviously knows about my strong anti-communism and who wanted to know if I "speak from both sides of the face." He thought a company I head was buying the soybean oil.

This is not the case. The food processing company I head is called HLH Products, and it is not connected in any way with any other food company. We have bought no soybean oil from Russia. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Quiet Revolution: Labor's Skilled Trade Unions To Open Doors Wide to Negroes of All Ghettos

Washington, D.C. -- Labor's inner establishment is about to lift the color blinds.

Leaders of those artisans whose skills make possible the ripping out of the inner cities' inner slums, the unrolling of thousands of miles of ribbons of concrete roads, the rising of 100-story structures -- namely, the chiefs of the AFL-CIO building and construction trades unions -- have decided to tell tens of thousands of Negro youths to come on in.

The word soon will go to thousands of local unions whose members now earn on any clear day from $6 to $8 an hour. These locals will be told by their national chiefs to go into the ghettos and seek out those disadvantaged" young men who want to work -- and to tell them now for the first time they need only mind and muscle and will. The Negroes no longer will be told they are welcome only if they qualify or they have talent or if they can pass a test to get into the $2.60-an-hour apprenticeship training schools jointly run by labor and management.

For this is THE revolution. The plumbers, the electricians, the operating engineers, the masons and bricklayers, the old father-son, blood-relations membership unions will stomp tradition. They will rip themselves out of the old high button shoes, bowler hat tradition.

If they follow their leaders they will tell the Negro youngsters that the union men themselves will go into the slums to train them to pass the tests -- whether or not the young men can read or reckon the tough technical strictures which today guide those who burrow underground or raise steel and glass structures into the skies.

The old construction trades -- whose 3.5 million members have always been labor's establishment -- have come upon their new flexibility slowly but certainly if advance advice from this trillion-dollar front is accurate. And I believe it is.

For on November 29 in a large conference hall of the Hotel Americana, Bal Harbour, Fla., a veteran warrior by name of C.J. "Neal" Haggerty, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Dept., will rise to read his report to the Department's national convention. In the hall with him will be the rock-solid leaders of 18 national unions to whom anonymity is both a virtue and unshakable strength. In the past a newsman, even one who is an old friend, could more easily whip up a dialogue with the Sphinx than he could with these influential men.

And "Neal" will say, in effect, that he believes that the vast field of urban renewal and rehabilitation will for generations to come be the most important section of the building and construction trades industry -- not dams, nor roads, not airports, but the "de-rat-ing," the unslumming, the pouring of new boulevards, the remaking of a thousand cities.

The time, he will advise his peers, is now to "get in" and work with the Housing and Urban Development Dept., the Labor Dept., the Justice Dept. (equal opportunity enforcement division). All this will mean the employment of disadvantaged workers in the areas being rehabilitated; the training of the ghetto area youth. These will be the major considerations in the demonstration cities programs.

His report will say that each of "our" local unions in these areas must consider accepting into its membership those who live in the blighted districts, not only where and when they are qualified as "journeymen," but also those who are unskilled.

These local unions now should institute learner or trainee programs for those youths now on street corners -- if they show any aptitude or interest in construction work.

To insiders the fantastic words are "journeymen" and trainee programs. No Horatio ever guarded a bridgehead more tightly than these unions protected their portals against the influx of "journeymen." The word describes the full-fledged member -- the $5.85-an-hour plumber; the $7.90-an-hour operating engineer; the $10-an-hour (double time) iron worker. Now what "Neal" will say is: let the Negro and Puerto Rican and Mexican American and American Indian in if he can handle the job or help him in if he can't. Help the youth pass the test so he can serve his five-year apprenticeship and move into the journeymen status wherever you find the kinds who don't look down on construction work but believe that centuries can be leap-frogged only with white collar status.

There will be jobs for all in this construction program. Government plans call for the expenditure of trillions, not just billions (76.5 billion for this fiscal year alone). Government planners are thinking in terms of decades of construction, not just months or years.

And when "Neal" speaks there will be in that hall the men with whom the construction union chiefs have battled -- Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and Housing developer, Secretary Robert Weaver. They will speak publicly, too. But first there will have been the breaking of bread at a private luncheon.

This could be the quiet revolution to end all those fiery o es in the streets.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

Hunting is, in our day, a sport. Few could justify the time and effort spent in pursuit of wild creatures in any other way. Like every other sport, it is regulated by rules and a code of ethics. The Missouri Conservation Commission has law enforcement officers afield to enforce the rules, but only the hunter can make the code of ethics meaningful. There is no law, for instance, to stop a hunter from killing sitting quail or roosting doves. Only the sporting instinct of the hunter can enforce these ideal of sportsmanship.

Likewise, there is no law that compels a hunter to go in pursuit of crippled game nor one that compels a hunter to wait until he has opportunity to make a clean kill before shooting. But the sportsman will make every effort to leave no cripples behind. There is no more pathetic sight than to follow a group of thoughtless hunters and see the helpless cripples waiting to die. As long as there is hunting, there will, of course, be some cripple lost but no hunter is a true sportsman until he reaches the point where the cripples he leaves behind worry him.

In recent years some concerted effort has been made to convince hunters to wait for the chance to make a clean kill. All sportsmen lose when a skybuster scares away ducks that might otherwise be decoyed into gun range, or when duck and geese die a slow death from a few pellets lodged in their bodies.

Restrictions on certain species of ducks should cause the true sportsman to allow a flock to come near enough for positive identification -- this should cut cripple loss.

For you non-hunters here's something many of you have probably wondered about when you hear hunters talk about a gauge of a gun.

The gauge of a gun is figured by the number of round lead balls. The bore is required to total a pound in weight.

A gun is said to be 12-gauge when a round lead ball, which exactly fits the bore, weighs 1-12th of a pound. If it takes 16 balls to weigh a pound, the gun would be 16 gauge. The one exception is the .410. The diameter of its barrel is measured in inches, .410.

Nebraska Next For Tigers

COLUMBIA -- Immovable Mizzou and inpenetrable Nebraska slug it out here Saturday afternoon in a Big Eight football game that may leave some deep furrows in Memorial Stadium's turf.

The game should draw 55,000 spectators -- as the two hard-bitten clubs shoot for a still-possible share of the league title and bowl consideration.

Nebraska rumbles into this 61st meeting between the two schools as the nation's most miserly dispenser of yardage. The Huskers are No. 1 in total defense -- with a 51.4 - yard rushing yield third-best nationally, and a 87.7-yard forward-passing ration to each foe.

The Tigers figure in the total defense charts -- ranking third in the big picture on a dole of 170.6 yards per game.

Bob Devaney of Nebraska and the Tigers' Dan Devine -- a couple of contemporary Michigan State assistant coaches who have enjoyed sparkling success in top jobs -- will be involved in their sixth personal duel. Devaney's Cornhuskers won the last four decision.

Last year's episode -- a 35-0 drubbing on regional TV at Lincoln -- is one rankling flashback that Mizzou veterans could carry into Saturday's scrap. The last two MU-NU games in Columbia, though, have been tensely-fought dramas.

Four years ago, the Scarlet invaders won out here, 13-12. The 1965 showdown, played to a record 57,206 crowd, featured Nebraska's comeback from a 14-0 disadvantage to a 16-14 triumph on Larry Wachholtz's clutch field goal late in the final quarter.

On paper, anyhow, the Missourian's defensive muscle -- and firepower on offense -- appears to be a cut below the Nebraska variety. In backs Frank Patrick, Ben Gregory, Joe Orduna and Dick Davis, the Huskers display more front-line backfield brilliance. Led defensively by all-American Wayne Meylan at middle guard, they have shut out their last three opponents.

Mizzou's halfbacks generated a more diversified attack against K-State -- and the Jon Staggers' breakaway threat is again present to supplement the inside-outside thrusts of Barry Lischner and Gary Kombrink. But the Bengals fall short -- painfully short -- in any comparison with the Nebraska passing game.

The Huskers are No. 2 in the Big Eight, averaging 137 aerial yards a game. Patrick is third on the individual tables with 998 yards by air. Missouri is last in passing at 46.5 yards a game.

Curt Jones, senior defensive tackle, is of questionable readiness Saturday, after spraining a knee -- and his stand-in is Roger Boyd. Back for duty, though, is guard Carl Garber with the defense -- so the Tigers are not severly short-handed up front.

Interesting Season Ahead For Sikeston

The 1967-68 basketball season should be an interesting one both for the Sikeston High School Bulldogs and their fans.

Sikeston lost its two big scorers, Wayne Limbaugh and Lester Carter, by graduation. Both men averaged more than 12 points a game last season. Just who will take up this scoring slack is something of a mystery for the fans and a problem for Bulldog coach N. P. McDaniel. The coach plans to go along with the nucleus of last year's squad.

Both of the starters lost were guards and that leaves two big gaps in the Sikeston attack with four battling for the positions. The other three positions are held down at the moment by 6-5 center Fred Towns returning after a successful sophomore season, 6-3 forward Gary Wiss, returning after receiving many district honors last year and 6-1 forward Carl Barnett, who saw a lot of action last year.

The key to the front - line problem is Barnett, who with a good season will give McDaniel and his assistant Joe Beaher a nucleus with which to work.

While the Bulldogs have those three returning and a strong four vying for the guard slots, the Dogs will need some bench strength.

Heading for their season opener Nov. 29 against Charleston in the SEMO Conference Tournament at Kennett, the Bulldogs have been showing strength on the boards and defense with the offense the biggest surprise to the coaches, as the boys came to practice with a new attitude... It's going to be a bumper year for the Bulldogs of SHS.

As the season shapes up, Coach McDaniel said that while it is still a question mark, so was last season.

The 1966-67 unit was better than many fans expected. The 1967-68 season might be even bigger with the spirit of basketball the Bulldogs possess.

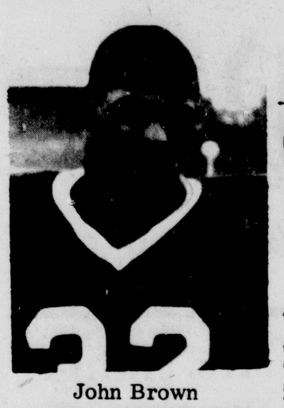

As for the SEMO Conference, the Bulldog mentor sees Kennett, Charleston and Poplar Bluff as the teams to beat.

Of course, the Bulldogs must be considered. With the returning of All-State honorable mention, Wiss, and the district's leading rebounder, Towns, along with the development of the Younger players, Sikeston should be a challenger for the conference title.

Bluff Stars Selected For All-Star Game

Two Northern Division All-Conference stars from Poplar Bluff High School's football team, which finished third in the division of the Southeast Missouri Football conference, were named Thursday to the Missouri All-Star team.

Selected from Poplar Bluff were John Brown and Larry Wooden, both two-year first team all-conference selections.

The 215-pound Brown was the Class L's All-State fullback in 1966 and is up for high honors this season.

Wooden is a 185-pound tackle.

The final selections for the squad are expected tonight.

Missouri's All-Stars coached by Jack Kersting will meet an all-star squad from Illinois Nov. 25 at Busch Memorial Stadium, St. Louis.

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Old football players don't die, they become cadet colonels at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

At least that's what happened to Thomas F. Lynn of St. Louis, former Tiger end, who is commandant of some 600 Army ROTC cadets.

Roses will be blooming in the thoughts of UCLA, Southern California, Indiana and Minnesota football players Saturday, but for Army, no matter what happens, the season will be one of bittersweet memories.

Top-ranked UCLA will battle No. 4 Southern California in Los Angeles, with a Rose Bowl invitation and probable national championship at Stake.

The other Rose Bowl berth will be decided at the Indiana-Minnesota game at Minneapolis. Even if third-ranked Purdue beats Michigan State Saturday and then fifth-ranked Indiana the following weekend, the Boilermakers will be ineligible for the Rose Bowl under Big Ten rules because they played in the last one.

But Army has nothing to look forward to but victories at Pittsburgh Saturday and over Navy Dec. 2 for a 9-1 record, the best at West Point since the 1949 team was 9-0.

Some of the sweetness went out of the Cadets' season Thursday when the Pentagon announced the Army football team will not accept a bid to the Sugar Bowl or any other postseason game. The Sugar Bowl had indicated an interest in inviting the Cadets.

Other games involving Top Ten team Saturday:

Second-ranked Tennessee plays Mississippi at Memphis, Tenn.; No. 6 Wyoming is at Texas-El Paso at night; seventh- ranked Oklahoma is at home against Kansas; No. 8 Oregon State, which has beaten Purdue and Southern Cal and tied UCLA, entertains Oregon, No. 9; Notre Dame is at Georgia Tech and 10th- ranked North Carolina State is at Clemson.

Maryland is at Wake Forest in the only game involving major teams Friday night.

The big game of the weekend has to be the one between UCLA, 7-0-1, and Southern California, 8-1, which will be televised nationally (ABC, 4 p.m., EST).

Not only does it involve a race for the Rose Bowl and nation honors, but it also will pit two of college football's super stars—UCLA quarterback Gary Beban and Southern Cal halfback O. J. Simpson.

It shapes up as a battle between UCLA's offense and Southern Cal's defense, but in this traditional game surprises are the rule.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

Hunting is, in our day, a sport. Few could justify the time and effort spent in pursuit of wild creatures in any other way. Like every other sport, it is regulated by rules and a code of ethics. The Missouri Conservation Commission has law enforcement officers afield to enforce the rules, but only the hunter can make the code of ethics meaningful. There is no law, for instance, to stop a hunter from killing sitting quail or roosting doves. Only the sporting instinct of the hunter can enforce these ideal of sportsmanship.

Likewise, there is no law that compels a hunter to go in pursuit of crippled game nor one that compels a hunter to wait until he has opportunity to make a clean kill before shooting. Show of Fight Could Improve LBJ's Image

WASHINGTON (AP) — In public opinion President Johnson, according to the polls, is near the bottom of the barrel. There is no place for him to go now but up.

To go up he'll have to start fighting, for a change. Much of his time in the White House has been like living in a monastery, he has done so little talking to the people about national problems.

But as a politician, and with the 1968 elections coming up, it can be taken for granted he will try to fight to restore himself in the public mind. How he fights will be one of the most fascinating sights between now and the elections.

It has become a cliche to say his popularity, including both public liking and confidence, would leap up if the Vietnam war suddenly ended. But that would be depending on a miracle, if he waited for that.

He will probably have to plug along without that kind of help.

Yet public opinion about the President— as expressed in polls — has been neither very perceptive nor brilliant. One example is what happened after his two meetings in June with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in Glassboro, N.J.

The Louis Harris poll, published within two weeks after those meetings, showed Johnson's popularity had shot up to 54 per cent, an 11 per cent jump over a couple of months before.

It must have been the glamor, or hope, that made the difference, not the facts, for so far as the public knew the two meetings accomplished absolutely nothing.

Time passed, the memory of Glassboro dimmed, the Vietnam war dragged on, as it had been doing before Glassboro, and both the Harris and Gallup polls show now Johnson's standing with the people is at an all-time low. Yet, between Glassboro and now nothing has changed.

Since the biggest monkey on Johnson's back is, and has been almost from the beginning of his presidency, the Vietnam war, it would seem he would use every device to lighten the load.

One handy device would have been repeated talks to the nation on the war, with explanations. Years from now biographers and historians will have a field day trying to explain Johnson's growing reluctance to make nationwide talks.

This is particularly strange since, in private, he talks incessantly and with force. He realizes he is not at his best making speeches, this writer has been told.

Among the presidents he is the poorest speechmaker since Calvin Coolidge.

Again and again his speeches are full of corn and platitudes. Whether this is his doing is not clear. What he seems to need badly are better speechwriters.

Even President Harry S. Truman, with less education than Johnson, was better at public speaking. There were no decorations, no literary flourishes, or attempts at them. Truman was terse, tough and to the point.

The last time Johnson made a full-length talk on Vietnam was Sept. 29. It's hard to remember when he did the same before. Instead, he has a habit of throwing in bits and pieces on Vietnam in a speech.

But those bits and pieces, in a talk that roams over other subjects, too, get lost to view and memory. Recently Johnson has been depending on aides— like Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Secretary of State Dean Rusk— to answer the critics on Vietnam. The result: the criticism increases.

That there is a broad desire for explanations from Johnson was illustrated last Sunday when a minister, who should have taken the trouble to be better informed on some details, undertook to criticize Johnson for not talking more. Johnson sat in a pew listening to him.

Johnson is at his best out of public sight, dealing with people. But the public can't see that and— judging from how quickly the public has forgotten his tremendous achievements with legislation in 1965— wouldn't even remember.

His concentration on the war seems to have gotten in the way of working on Congress. That has a price tag on it: When Congress finally finishes up this year its record will be unimpressive.

In short, to resurrect himself in public esteem Johnson will have to perform on his own, in full sight of the public.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Lee Earl

Rosemary Ruth Zoellner Says Vows With Stephen Lee Earl

CHARLESTON -- St. Henry's Catholic Church was the setting last Friday for the wedding of Miss Rosemary Ruth Zoellner and Stephen Lee Earl.

The Rev. Fr. Justin Monaghan officiated at the 8 p.m. ceremony.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Delbert J. Zoellner; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Earl, Carson City, Nev.

Baskets of white gladioli decorated the church.

Rod Gilmore of Charleston and James Stopher of St. Louis served as ushers.

Sister Doris provided wedding music.

Miss Suzanne Zoellner, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Another sister, Miss Beth Zoellner, was bridesmaid, Sara Jo Zoellner, also the bride's sister, was flower girl.

The attendants wore sleeveless tent dresses fashioned on bonbon green velvet. The maid of honor and bridesmaid wore headdresses and slippers dyed to match their gowns and carried arm bouquets of bronze mums. They wore elbow-length gloves.

The flower girl wore a circlet of bronze mums in her hair.

The bride wore a white velvet over tafetta gown fashioned by her mother. The empire waistline was trimmed with pearls and crystal beads. The bodice was styled with a high wide neckline and elbow-length bell shaped sleeves. The gown's skirt was full and bell shaped. A detachable train flowed from the shoulders to the hemline.

The former Miss Zoellner wore a crown of lace accented with crystal beads securing a shoulder-length veil of silk illusion.

She carried an arm bouquet of white snow crystal mums.

Martin S. Zoellner was best man. Michael S. Zoellner was groomsman. Ringbearer was David Logel. The men in the wedding party wore tuxedos and white boutonnieres.

A reception followed in the gym of St. Henry's Grade School. The four-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal couple, silver punch service and coffee service appointed the bride's table.

Serving were Mrs. Linda Gage, Linda Francis and Kathy Graham. Miss Martha Pierceall, the bride's cousin, presided at the guest register.

The bride's mother wore a beige double knot A-line dress, brown and gold accessories and a corsage of bronze mums.

The couple left for Reno, Nev., where they reside at 1680 Mill.

The new Mrs. Earl is a graduate of St. Henry's High School. Before her marriage she was employed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company in Sikeston.

The groom is a graduate of Carson City, Nev., High School and recently was discharged from the navy.

Pepper Dance Is Tomorrow

Annual fall Red Pepper dance is scheduled for tomorrow evening in the Sikeston middle school auditorium from 8-11:30 o'clock.

Entertainment for the dance will be furnished by the Next of Kin from Kansas City. Red Pepper officers are in charge of the selection of the band.

Plans are in full swing, and junior girls will spend tomorrow decorating. Junior Red Peppers are in charge of all decorations and refreshments.

Martha Bucher is the chairman for the dance. Assisting Martha are co-chairmen Kay Stauffer and Paige Fuller. As is the usual custom of the past, specific details concerning the theme of the dance will not be disclosed to students until their arrival at the dance.

Phyllis Ford is the chairman for a committee of girls who are in charge of refreshments for the evening. Freshmen girls are contributing their time to serve refreshments from a decorated table during the dance.

Belinda Morphis is the chairman of the invitation committee.

Punch will be made by the refreshment committee to be served for drinks. Decorations of the refreshments will coincide with the theme of the dance. With the exception of the 25 cents paid by each of the sophomores, the money for the dance came from the $2.50 dues that each Red Pepper member paid at the beginning of the school year.

Red Peppers may pick up their invitations after school today. Dates from out-of-town or who have graduated will be mailed invitations from the list in the office.

Clean-up committee is sophomore Red Peppers with last names beginning with A-M. They will take down the remaining decorations in the auditorium Sunday morning.

Young Artists Send Drawings For Art Contest

Daily Sikeston Standard sponsored a Christmas art contest for students in grades one through 12.

Christmas or New Year themes could be used for the pen and black ink drawings.

Over 100 of the sketches will be selected to be published in the Christmas Eve edition of the Daily Sikeston Standard.

One dollar will be contributed to the hospital building fund in the name of each student whose picture is published.

As well as the contribution to the building fund, 16 prizes will be given, four in each of four levels.

Level one is for grades one through three, and level two is for students in grades four through six. Level three is for middle school, and level four is for art students in senior high school.

First place winner in each level will received $5, second place $3, third place $2, and fourth place $1.

Sikeston high school art students entered drawings for the deadline last Friday.

Last year's winners were Pam Marsh, Nancy Hazel, Bobby Grojean and Linda Bennett.

Miller Gives Timely Talk For Soceity

Raymert Miller, city manager of Sikeston, spoke to the National Honor Society students Monday afternoon on the subject, "Responsible Leadership."

Mr. Miller said as leaders of tomorrow, students are faced with the problem of becoming responsible leaders.

As well as being able to make correct decisions, the leaders of tomorrow need to be able to change and generate ideas.

People are resistant to change, and the new leaders need to know how to communicate with people to get their ideas across.

Even though technological progress in the 20th century has been splendid, other areas have been overlooked. The democratic process needs to be refined so it can be used to find workable solutions to problems of the world today.

"New methods of oral communication need to be found to break the language barrier between different nations," said Mr. Miller.

Committee was formed to study the history of the Sikeston high school chapter of the National Honor Society.

Sociology Quiz Says Sr. Girls Rated Highly

Third-hour sociology class, directed by John Brooke, administered a survey to a cross-section of the senior boys.

This survey dealt mainly with the differences between the senior and sophomore girls.

Statistics proved by a large majority that the senior girl is more mature, more friendly and more sophisticated than a sophomore girl.

Since the sophomore girls do not know the senior boys, many wish to become better acquainted.

"Blondes have more fun," in this case, was proved by the statistics that 43 per cent of the boys like blondes better than brunettes or red heads.

A follow-up survey of the senior party will be administered later in the year to see if the senior boys take senior girls to the party.

Band Closes '67 Season Of Marching

Sikeston high school band, directed by Keith Collins, presented its last marching performance of the season at the Blytheville football game two weeks ago.

Since the evening was rainy last Friday, the band did not perform at the game with Poplar Bluff.

Band performed a half-time show at the Blytheville game, honoring the late George M. Cohen.

Entering the field in block formation, the band played "Spotlight on the Brass." In the center of the field the band halted and played a fanfare.

Moving into the formation of a church, the musicians played the "Doxology."

From the church, the band formed a giant stage, and as the curtain rose Janie Vandivort, senior, presented a soft-shoe dance to the tune of "I Guess I'll Have To Telegraph My Baby."

Band created a champagne glass and played "My Gal Is a Highborn Lady" as the twirlers did their routine.

Marchers left the field on a drum cadence.

Both bands began concert practice Monday morning. Early division band (7:30), and the late division (8:30) meet daily.

Officers of early division are president Diane Taylor, vice-president Lynne Tenkhoff, and secretary Carolyn Clinton.

Leading the 8:30 band are president David Entrekin, vice-president Terry Watkins, and Secretary Gena Nunnelee.

Each band will present a spring concert. Late division band will perform in a pop-concert following open house in the spring.

Band composed of all the sophomore musicians will play for graduation in May.

Perhaps the only true dignity of man is his capacity to despise himself.

Regina, a senior, lives on Route 4 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Namon Pearson, two sisters -- Teresa, 13, and Terrie, eight --and her brother, Lynn, three.

Regina is taking many of the business education courses offered by the high school and is the one is charge of getting the people to work in the student store.

FrostTonight

by Earle J. Grant

"Frost tonight,"
Said the weatherman. . .
So I hurry out
Fast as I can
To gather the few brave blooms
And bring them in. . .
Also the last of the apples
To fill the bin.

Beside an old rain fence
Blaze dahlias, red and gold,
And near the kitchen door
Are the yellow marigolds.
And oh, I must not forget
The mums by the garden gate
Nor hanging like amethysts
In ice-thin air, the purple grapes

"Frost tonight,"
Said the weatherman. . .
So I bring the harvest in
Fast as I can!

Students Of Sikeston High Should Learn To Think

EDUCATION IS the key to success, and that key is based upon the ability to think.

Students should learn to think. They should strive to expand their minds, broaden their scope and increase their knowledge.

They should think and they should wonder why. Why are we here? Are we some small, insignificant figures in a world that extends beyond the imagination of the human mind? Can we expand our knowledge to degrees far beyond measured human capabilities?

Answers to such questions are not just lying around waiting to be discovered when the time is right. They can only be discovered through the processes of the mind, for answers are the products of thoughts and thoughts are products of the human mind.

Man is not a wooden image incapable of functioning. He is a being capable of reasoning, of performing and capable of teaching and transferring to others the accumulated knowledge of his lifetime.

Aid for his existence was given to man in the form of the mind, but he does not benefit fully from his gift.

Unexplored and unmeasured powers of the human mind are wasted because of low operating efficiency, and this inefficiency is the product of inactivity and laziness.

Do the minds of Sikeston high school students fall into this lackadaisical category?

Students who attend school because it is compulsory, and whose main objective in attending classes is to have a good time and socialize with friends are wasting their time.

Students should realize that things are changing every day, and there are other people in the world who are thinking and planning for tomorrow.

Students who do not think will be left behind in the changing world.

Thanksgiving Day Is Near Consider Your Blessings

EACH YEAR, between the last golden days of autumn and the early winter snows, Americans set aside a day to pause and remember all that they possess to be thankful.

How many people really think about the real meaning of Thanksgiving? Today Thanksgiving is mainly associated with family gatherings, traditional turkey dinners, and a vacation from school. Too many times, giving thanks fails to become a part of the festivities.

Webster defines Thanksgiving as "a holiday in November, which was instituted by the Pilgrims to give thanks to God for their survival."

Thanksgiving is the day to give thanks to God for all the blessings He has bestowed upon the nation.

Congress proclaimed after 1941, that the fourth Thursday in November would officially be observed as Thanksgiving Day and would be a legal holiday.

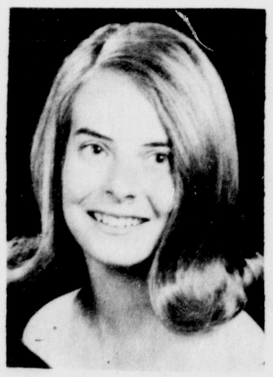

Today, more than ever, young people are offered countless opportunities, and they are given chances to exercise these opportunities.

Qualities that many take for granted -- freedom of speech, freedom of press, freedom of religion -- all of these should be considered on Thanksgiving Day.

Students and faculty should make it a point to associate Thanksgiving Day with its real meaning and put the thanks back into Thanksgiving.

SERVING THE STUDENTS, FACULTY AND STAFF OF SIKESTON SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL SINCE 1936

Volume 31, Number 10 — SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL, SIKESTON, MISSOURI — Friday, November 17, 1967

Pepper Dance Is Tomorrow

Annual fall Red Pepper dance is scheduled for tomorrow evening in the Sikeston middle school auditorium from 8-11:30 o'clock.

Entertainment for the dance will be furnished by the Next of Kin from Kansas City. Red Pepper officers are in charge of the selection of the band.

Plans are in full swing, and junior girls will spend tomorrow decorating. Junior Red Peppers are in charge of all decorations and refreshments.

Martha Bucher is the chairman for the dance. Assisting Martha are co-chairmen Kay Stauffer and Paige Fuller. As is the usual custom of the past, specific details concerning the theme of the dance will not be disclosed to students until their arrival at the dance.

Phyllis Ford is the chairman for a committee of girls who are in charge of refreshments for the evening. Freshmen girls are contributing their time to serve refreshments from a decorated table during the dance.

Belinda Morphis is the chairman of the invitation committee.

Punch will be made by the refreshment committee to be served for drinks. Decorations of the refreshments will coincide with the theme of the dance.

With the exception of the 25 cents paid by each of the sophomores, the money for the dance came from the $2.50 dues that each Red Pepper member paid at the beginning of the school year.

Red Peppers may pick up their invitations after school today. Dates from out-of-town or who have graduated will be mailed invitations from the list in the office.

Clean-up committee is sophomore Red Peppers with last names beginning with A-M. They will take down the remaining decorations in the auditorium Sunday morning.

Young Artists Send Drawings For Art Contest

Daily Sikeston Standard sponsored a Christmas art contest for students in grades one through 12.

Christmas or New Year themes could be used for the pen and black ink drawings.

Over 100 of the sketches will be selected to be published in the Christmas Eve edition of the Daily Sikeston Standard.

One dollar will be contributed to the hospital building fund in the name of each student whose picture is published.

As well as the contribution to the building fund, 16 prizes will be given, four in each of four levels.

Level one is for grades one through three, and level two is for students in grades four through six. Level three is for middle school, and level four is for art students in senior high school.

First place winner in each level will received $5, second place $3, third place $2, and fourth place $1.

Sikeston high school art students entered drawings for the deadline last Friday.

Last year's winners were Pam Marsh, Nancy Hazel, Bobby Grojean and Linda Bennett.

Miller Gives Timely Talk For Soceity

Raymert Miller, city manager of Sikeston, spoke to the National Honor Society students Monday afternoon on the subject, "Responsible Leadership."

Mr. Miller said as leaders of tomorrow, students are faced with the problem of becoming responsible leaders.

As well as being able to make correct decisions, the leaders of tomorrow need to be able to change and generate ideas.

People are resistant to change, and the new leaders need to know how to communicate with people to get their ideas across.

Even though technological progress in the 20th century has been splendid, other areas have been overlooked. The democratic process needs to be refined so it can be used to find workable solutions to problems of the world today.

"New methods of oral communication need to be found to break the language barrier between different nations," said Mr. Miller.

Committee was formed to study the history of the Sikeston high school chapter of the National Honor Society.

Sociology Quiz Says Sr. Girls Rated Highly

Third-hour sociology class, directed by John Brooke, administered a survey to a cross-section of the senior boys.

This survey dealt mainly with the differences between the senior and sophomore girls.

Statistics proved by a large majority that the senior girl is more mature, more friendly and more sophisticated than a sophomore girl.

Since the sophomore girls do not know the senior boys, many wish to become better acquainted.

"Blondes have more fun," in this case, was proved by the statistics that 43 per cent of the boys like blondes better than brunettes or red heads.

A follow-up survey of the senior party will be administered later in the year to see if the senior boys take senior girls to the party.

Band Closes '67 Season Of Marching

Sikeston high school band, directed by Keith Collins, presented its last marching performance of the season at the Blytheville football game two weeks ago.

Since the evening was rainy last Friday, the band did not perform at the game with Poplar Bluff.

Band performed a half-time show at the Blytheville game, honoring the late George M. Cohen.

Entering the field in block formation, the band played "Spotlight on the Brass." In the center of the field the band halted and played a fanfare.

Moving into the formation of a church, the musicians played the "Doxology."

From the church, the band formed a giant stage, and as the curtain rose Janie Vandivort, senior, presented a soft-shoe dance to the tune of "I Guess I'll Have To Telegraph My Baby."

Band created a champagne glass and played "My Gal Is a Highborn Lady" as the twirlers did their routine.

Marchers left the field on a drum cadence.

Both bands began concert practice Monday morning. Early division band (7:30), and the late division (8:30) meet daily.

Officers of early division are president Diane Taylor, vice-president Lynne Tenkhoff, and secretary Carolyn Clinton.

Leading the 8:30 band are president David Entrekin, vice-president Terry Watkins, and Secretary Gena Nunnelee.

Each band will present a spring concert. Late division band will perform in a pop-concert following open house in the spring.

Band composed of all the sophomore musicians will play for graduation in May.

Perhaps the only true dignity of man is his capacity to despise himself.

We judge ourselves by what we feel capable of doing, while others judge us by what we have already done.

Sr. Regina Pearson Is FBLA 'Member Of Month'

Regina Pearson

Future Business Leaders of America selected Regina Pearson as "Student of the Month" for November.

Working on the FBLA float, which tied for second place in the cotton carnival parade, in the student store, and on all FBLA activities leaves little time for Regina's hobby of cooking.

Regina wishes to go to a school of cosmetology in Sikeston after her graduation in the spring.

Regina, a senior, lives on Route 4 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Namon Pearson, two sisters -- Teresa, 13, and Terrie, eight --and her brother, Lynn, three.

Regina is taking many of the business education courses offered by the high school and is the one is charge of getting the people to work in the student store.

FrostTonight

by Earle J. Grant

"Frost tonight,"
Said the weatherman. . .
So I hurry out
Fast as I can
To gather the few brave blooms
And bring them in. . .
Also the last of the apples
To fill the bin.

Beside an old rain fence
Blaze dahlias, red and gold,
And near the kitchen door
Are the yellow marigolds.
And oh, I must not forget
The mums by the garden gate
Nor hanging like amethysts
In ice-thin air, the purple grapes

"Frost tonight,"
Said the weatherman. . .
So I bring the harvest in
Fast as I can!

Students Of Sikeston High Should Learn To Think

EDUCATION IS the key to success, and that key is based upon the ability to think.

Students should learn to think. They should strive to expand their minds, broaden their scope and increase their knowledge.

They should think and they should wonder why. Why are we here? Are we some small, insignificant figures in a world that extends beyond the imagination of the human mind? Can we expand our knowledge to degrees far beyond measured human capabilities?

Answers to such questions are not just lying around waiting to be discovered when the time is right. They can only be discovered through the processes of the mind, for answers are the products of thoughts and thoughts are products of the human mind.

Man is not a wooden image incapable of functioning. He is a being capable of reasoning, of performing and capable of teaching and transferring to others the accumulated knowledge of his lifetime.

Aid for his existence was given to man in the form of the mind, but he does not benefit fully from his gift.

Unexplored and unmeasured powers of the human mind are wasted because of low operating efficiency, and this inefficiency is the product of inactivity and laziness.

Do the minds of Sikeston high school students fall into this lackadaisical category?

Students who attend school because it is compulsory, and whose main objective in attending classes is to have a good time and socialize with friends are wasting their time.

Students should realize that things are changing every day, and there are other people in the world who are thinking and planning for tomorrow.

Students who do not think will be left behind in the changing world.

Thanksgiving Day Is Near Consider Your Blessings

EACH YEAR, between the last golden days of autumn and the early winter snows, Americans set aside a day to pause and remember all that they possess to be thankful.

How many people really think about the real meaning of Thanksgiving? Today Thanksgiving is mainly associated with family gatherings, traditional turkey dinners, and a vacation from school. Too many times, giving thanks fails to become a part of the festivities.

Webster defines Thanksgiving as "a holiday in November, which was instituted by the Pilgrims to give thanks to God for their survival."

Thanksgiving is the day to give thanks to God for all the blessings He has bestowed upon the nation.

Congress proclaimed after 1941, that the fourth Thursday in November would officially be observed as Thanksgiving Day and would be a legal holiday.

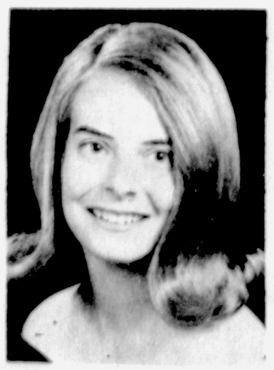

Today, more than ever, young people are offered countless opportunities, and they are given chances to exercise these opportunities.

Qualities that many take for granted -- freedom of speech, freedom of press, freedom of religion -- all of these should be considered on Thanksgiving Day.

Students and faculty should make it a point to associate Thanksgiving Day with its real meaning and put the thanks back into Thanksgiving.

Ann Landers

There's More to It Than Meets the Eye

Dear Ann Landers: A dear friend of mine had a horrible experience recently and I would like your opinion on what should be done about it. Emily (not her real name) noticed a lump in her breasts. She went to a physician and was told to check into the hospital for surgery that evening. The operation was performed within 48 hours of the time she had seen the physician.

When Emily awoke from the anesthetic she learned that her breast had been removed. She went into a deep depression (which I understand is not unusual) but she began to cheer up on the fourth day. On the fifth day, however, it leaked out that the biopsy report on the breast which had been removed was negative. This made the poor woman so furious that she just about tore the hospital apart.

What can be done to prevent such catastrophes in the future? Don't suggest that Emily sue the doctor. Everyone knows the medical profession is such a tightly knit little group and it's ridiculous to try to fight them. I'd like your views. -- CALIFORNIAS YELL FOR HELP

Dear California: Like most second-hand reports your story contains some serious flaws.

No reputable physician removes a breast unless he first does a biopsy on the lump and finds a malignancy. This procedure is standard and virtually elimates the possibility of removing a healthy breast.

Furthermore, all hospitals approved by the American Hospital Association now have tissue committees which examine a portion of all the organs which have been removed. Years ago a surgeon could remove just about anything and not have to answer to anyone. Today, he would not be allowed to operate if he had a record for taking out organs which showed no sign of disease.

So, don't believe everything you hear, Dearie.

Dear Ann Landers: I couldn't resist writing to express my sympathy for the woman who signed herself "Mattied To A Nut." She asked you to arrange passage for him to the moon because he couldn't get along with a single person here on earth.

There is at least one more like him. My husband. He also has some pet theories about life and people and will happily deliver a 40-minute speech on any topic, with or without encouragement. My husband is certain that nobody in this world succeeds unless he is crooked, dishonest, immoral or related. This goes for the top people in politics, business, religion, education and the arts.

I have a suggestion for "Married to A Nut." Let's you and I get together and introduce our husbands. Maybe they can find happiness together knocking everybody on earth. Then we wives can take the first rocket to the moon and look for some nice little outter-space men who are sensible and well-balanced. Please print my name and address. -- ALSO MARRIED TO A NUT

Dear Also: Here's your letter but I wouldn't think of printing your name and address. You'd be besieged with letters from wives who would want to join you!

Confidential to Deep Trouble: Don't count on it. "Truth serum" does not always produce the truth. An experienced liar or a person who actually believes the lie he is telling can come out looking very truthful.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits -- the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex -- Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men. (Romans 12:18)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, make me an instrument of Thy peace in a world torn with strife. Help me to see that whenever I patch up a quarrel or avoid a misunderstanding I become a peacemaker for Thee. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Sea Cucumber

The sea cucumber is a water creature that looks like the common garden vegetable. It attaches itself to rocks with suction cups and feeds on small sea creatures it catches with slimy tentacles surrounding its mouth.

If You Were The Judge

Ticket Taker Holds Up Well in Pinch

By Jack Strauss, L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE SLY OLD MAN

Hector was an aged train conductor who pinched while he punched. Whenever a pretty girl would board his train, he'd punch her ticket and then give her a surrepititous squeeze on the backside as she passed by. While this kept the twinkle in Hector's eye, his pretty bruised passengers began to tell him where to get off instead of vice versa. The result? When Hector's employer got wind of Hector's conduct, he fired Hector.

"What do I care?" Hector told his employer in a resigned fashion. "Under your collective bargaining agreement with my union, I've already eligible for retirement, so. I'm retiring."

"It's too late for you to do that," was the answer. "Once a man has been fired, he's no longer an employee. And, unless a man is an employee, he's got no job from which to retire."

While the employer's logic followed like dessert after dinner, Hector refused to swallow it. Instead, he hurried off to court where he demanded that his employer be ordered to pay him his retirement benefits.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Hector to retire and collect his retirement benefits?

This is how the Judge ruled: Hector won! The Judge held that unless a collective bargaining agreement disqualifies an employee from receiving benefits if fired, once his retirement rights have matured, he's entitled to receive those benefits even if fired.

Ann Landers

There's More to It Than Meets the Eye

Dear Ann Landers: A dear friend of mine had a horrible experience recently and I would like your opinion on what should be done about it. Emily (not her real name) noticed a lump in her breasts. She went to a physician and was told to check into the hospital for surgery that evening. The operation was performed within 48 hours of the time she had seen the physician.

When Emily awoke from the anesthetic she learned that her breast had been removed. She went into a deep depression (which I understand is not unusual) but she began to cheer up on the fourth day. On the fifth day, however, it leaked out that the biopsy report on the breast which had been removed was negative. This made the poor woman so furious that she just about tore the hospital apart.

What can be done to prevent such catastrophes in the future? Don't suggest that Emily sue the doctor. Everyone knows the medical profession is such a tightly knit little group and it's ridiculous to try to fight them. I'd like your views. -- CALIFORNIAS YELL FOR HELP

Dear California: Like most second-hand reports your story contains some serious flaws.

No reputable physician removes a breast unless he first does a biopsy on the lump and finds a malignancy. This procedure is standard and virtually elimates the possibility of removing a healthy breast.

Furthermore, all hospitals approved by the American Hospital Association now have tissue committees which examine a portion of all the organs which have been removed. Years ago a surgeon could remove just about anything and not have to answer to anyone. Today, he would not be allowed to operate if he had a record for taking out organs which showed no sign of disease.

So, don't believe everything you hear, Dearie.

Dear Ann Landers: I couldn't resist writing to express my sympathy for the woman who signed herself "Mattied To A Nut." She asked you to arrange passage for him to the moon because he couldn't get along with a single person here on earth.

There is at least one more like him. My husband. He also has some pet theories about life and people and will happily deliver a 40-minute speech on any topic, with or without encouragement. My husband is certain that nobody in this world succeeds unless he is crooked, dishonest, immoral or related. This goes for the top people in politics, business, religion, education and the arts.

I have a suggestion for "Married to A Nut." Let's you and I get together and introduce our husbands. Maybe they can find happiness together knocking everybody on earth. Then we wives can take the first rocket to the moon and look for some nice little outter-space men who are sensible and well-balanced. Please print my name and address. -- ALSO MARRIED TO A NUT

Dear Also: Here's your letter but I wouldn't think of printing your name and address. You'd be besieged with letters from wives who would want to join you!

Confidential to Deep Trouble: Don't count on it. "Truth serum" does not always produce the truth. An experienced liar or a person who actually believes the lie he is telling can come out looking very truthful.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits -- the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex -- Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men. (Romans 12;18)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, make me an instrument of Thy peace in a world torn with strife. Help me to see that whenever I patch up a quarrel or avoid a misunderstanding I become a peacemaker for Thee. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Sea Cucumber

The sea cucumber is a water creature that looks like the common garden vegetable. It attaches itself to rocks with suction cups and feeds on small sea creatures it catches with slimy tentacles surrounding its mouth.

Thief Gives Kiss As Receipt for $110,000 Ring

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two masked men raided the penthouse apartment of wealthy Mr. and Mrs. Carling L. Dinkler today, took a 22-carat diamond ring valued at $110,000, and left Mrs. Dinkler with a kiss on the cheek.

Police said the robbery took place at the plush Palm Bay Yacht Club, which Mrs. Dinkler helped build in 1965 as a place where "the potentially rich young people can enjoy themselves while they're making it."

Returning to the eighth-floor apartment after a United Fund dinner at the club, Dinkler walked into the bedroom and found two men waiting. He said each carried an automatic pistol with silencer.

"We're being held up honey," the multi-millionaire owner of hotel chains called out to his wife, who had gone into the kitchen.

After binding the couple with tape, the men took the pear-shaped diamond from Mrs. Dinkler's finger, found two emeralds while ransacking the apartment, and apparently left down an interior fire escape.

Just before leaving, the men taped the mouths of their victims and one of them leaned over and kissed Mrs. Dinkler's cheek.

Most political observers are of the opinion that those who are interested in the congressional race are going to have to declare themselves soon.

Presently six candidates have actually filed for the office.

In the last few days the names of B. F. Rogers, mayor of Caruthersville and collector in Pemiscot County, and Jay Mondy of Fisk, Campbell school administrator, were filed.

Ozark May Serve N.Y., Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Civil Aeronautics Board proposed Wednesday to authorize Ozark Air Lines, St. Louis, to serve Washington D. C., and New York City.

The board allowed 20 days for the filing of any objections to a grant of Ozark's application for authority to serve Washington through Dulles International Airport, and New York through La Guardia Airport.

The CAB said authorization would make possible the first direct air service between the two major Eastern cities and a number of Midwestern cities, including Sioux Falls, S. D., Sioux City and Waterloo, Iowa, and Peoria, Springfield and Champaign-Urbana, Illinois.

The new services would permit traffic to bypass Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, the nation's busiest air terminal, and by using Dulles exclusively would avoid adding to the present congestion at Washington National Airport, the board said.

Ozark would not be permitted to operate shuttle service between Washington and New York, or direct service between those cities and Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo., Tulsa, Okla., Omaha, Neb., or Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Voss said he has obtained vocal support of the Jaycees, Kiwanis Club, Optimist, Rotary and the Lions as well as letters of support from Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, Mayor Kendall Sikes and City Manager W. Raymert Miller.

The major expenses involved to the host town is transportation, food and lodging. With other incidentals, cost is estimated at about $8,000, Voss said.

Advance ticket sales, a banquet and other projects could bring in the necessary money, he said.

Thief Gives Kiss As Receipt for $110,000 Ring

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two masked men raided the penthouse apartment of wealthy Mr. and Mrs. Carling L. Dinkler today, took a 22-carat diamond ring valued at $110,000, and left Mrs. Dinkler with a kiss on the cheek.

Police said the robbery took place at the plush Palm Bay Yacht Club, which Mrs. Dinkler helped build in 1965 as a place where "the potentially rich young people can enjoy themselves while they're making it."

Returning to the eighth-floor apartment after a United Fund dinner at the club, Dinkler walked into the bedroom and found two men waiting. He said each carried an automatic pistol with silencer.

"We're being held up honey," the multi-millionaire owner of hotel chains called out to his wife, who had gone into the kitchen.

After binding the couple with tape, the men took the pear-shaped diamond from Mrs. Dinkler's finger, found two emeralds while ransacking the apartment, and apparently left down an interior fire escape.

Just before leaving, the men taped the mouths of their victims and one of them leaned over and kissed Mrs. Dinkler's cheek.

Most political observers are of the opinion that those who are interested in the congressional race are going to have to declare themselves soon.

Presently six candidates have actually filed for the office.

In the last few days the names of B. F. Rogers, mayor of Caruthersville and collector in Pemiscot County, and Jay Mondy of Fisk, Campbell school administrator, were filed.

Earlier filings were Bill D. Burlison, Cape Girardeau County prosecuting attorney; J. W. Wallace of Scott City, railroad man; Winston V. Buford of Ellington, Shannon County prosecuting attorney; David Rolwing of Charleston, state representative.

Ozark May Serve N.Y., Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Civil Aeronautics Board proposed Wednesday to authorize Ozark Air Lines, St. Louis, to serve Washington D. C., and New York City.

The board allowed 20 days for the filing of any objections to a grant of Ozark's application for authority to serve Washington through Dulles International Airport, and New York through La Guardia Airport.

The CAB said authorization would make possible the first direct air service between the two major Eastern cities and a number of Midwestern cities, including Sioux Falls, S. D., Sioux City and Waterloo, Iowa, and Peoria, Springfield and Champaign-Urbana, Illinois.

The new services would permit traffic to bypass Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, the nation's busiest air terminal, and by using Dulles exclusively would avoid adding to the present congestion at Washington National Airport, the board said.

Ozark would not be permitted to operate shuttle service between Washington and New York, or direct service between those cities and Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo., Tulsa, Okla., Omaha, Neb., or Minneapolis-St. Paul.
